TOOL KIT SENT ALOFT AT CALL OF REFUELERS

Motor of Endurance Ship Pumps Oil, According to Reports.

RUMORS CURRENT OF LOOSENED BOLT

Joy of Hunters Tempered With Sorrow as Craft Enters 23d Day.

ARMY RADIO PLANE AIDS IN BROADCAST

Nerves of Fliers Appear on Edge Under Wearing Grind of Flight.

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—Sorrow tempered the gladness of the Hunter clan tonight, as their endurance plane, the City of Chicago, soared on into its twenty-third day of continuous flying.

Profits undreamed of by the Hunters had already been realized from the record-breaking flight. Future wealth to be derived by the famous fliers beckoned. Yet there were tears in the eyes of Irene Hunter, dietitian for the fliers, as she prepared to broadcast words of courage to her brothers at dusk tonight.

"I am so happy—yet so sad," she explained. "All of us Hunters are here—all except one. Our sister, Maybelle, can't be with us. She has been in a New York sanitarium, the physical culture hotel, for a year. It's a physical breakdown. I'm going to call the doctor at the sanitarium tonight to see how she is."

Tells About Brothers.

A moment later Irene was telling her flying brothers, John and Kenneth, how proud she was of them.

"We're down on the ground pulling for you," she said. "I've got a lot of things to tell you. Your brother Albert's children came to day and I'm going to bring them up to see you."

Irene's lips trembled again as she turned from the microphone.

"I guess I'm a little tired, what with watching after my brothers' food so long," she said. "But I am worried about sister and wish she were here to share our happiness. The children I spoke of are Elizabeth, 11; Pauline, 9; Eileen, 7, and Herschel, 4. I'm sure they will be aviators like their father, who refuels the endurance ship. I think I'll learn to fly, too, if we make enough money to buy some ships for me to crack up."

Enters 534th Hour Aloft.

Despite reports that the motor was pumping oil and that a bolt in the plane had shaken loose, the City of Chicago soared on into its 534th hour at 9:40 central standard time tonight.

Frank W. Clarke, of New York City, mechanic for the Wright Aero Corporation, who helped prepare the endurance plane and mootr for its gruelling test, announced that the motor was pumping no oil.

"The motor is consuming 6 gallons of oil per day," said Clarke. "It consumed 4 at the start, but the increase is natural."

Belief that the City of Chicago was finally yielding to the strain of constant flight and that the flight might end even before July 4, became general at the air field late today when Pilot Kenneth Hunter was seen out on the "cat walk" working hastily at the motor.

Imperative Call for Tools.

A short time later an Army radio ship made a two-way aerial broadcast with the endurance plane. Lieut. E. S. Moon made the radio contact and conversed with Kenneth, who thanked his helpers below and declared he saw no reason why the plane should not keep up indifinitely.

The broadcast was terminated abruptly when the endurance fliers made an imperative demand for fuel and tools. Big Ben, the refueling ship, shot skyward, carrying fuel and a bag described by bystanders as one containing tools. Flight managers denied that anything serious had developed mechanically, however.

What troubles there were were in the worn nerves of the flyers. The motor of the plane continued to hum like a new one. Wednesday night newspapers were sent up to John and Kenneth by way of Big Ben, the refueling plane. That started a storm. Kenneth saw himself quoted as saying he was tired of the flight and that he wanted to land. As John put it in a note: "It caused plenty of trouble between me and him."

Kenneth Grows Weary.

Kenneth did complain that he was tired, said his brother, Albert, who, with another brother, Walter, operates the refueling plane. But John, the ground crew brothers explained, was angry because his note had been made public.

Still another worry of the boys, who hope to make their record long enough to stand forever, was news

Calvin Coolidge

Says: For one hundred and fifty-four years, July fourth has been called Independence Day. Since 1776 we have been politically an independent nation. But we do not need to emphasize our independence any more than we need to emphasize our selfishness. We are in no danger of failing to provide a very complete supply of both of them. Our greatness will not be in that direction, but in a more adequate recognition of our dependence. That is what the development of civilization seems to mean, division of labor, cooperation, mutual kindliness and helpfulness. On the economic, social and moral side of life we are all dependent. We do not produce enough calories to feed our population. We grow in grace through intercourse with our fellowmen. We build our character largely by meeting our obligation to others. We all live in the same world. We are bound to a common destiny through a common brotherhood. The path to glory does not lie in a sordid individualism, a perverted independence, or a narrow nationalism. It lies toward the Golden Rule. The independence which the fathers won by declaring their reliance on Providence and pledging their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor, not to themselves but to each other, we can not keep on any inferior commitment.

HOOVER ACTION SEEN ON HUSTON STATUS

Republican Chairman, Center of Controversy, Talks to President.

MEETING IS POSTPONED

(Associated Press.)

Further indications that President Hoover is prepared to take a hand in the controversy over continuation of Claudius Huston as chairman of the Republican national committee were seen yesterday coincidentally with postponement until Thursday of the meeting of the national committee officers set for Monday.

After his whereabouts had been unknown to the President and his aids for several days, inquiries Wednesday located Mr. Huston in New York and yesterday he conversed with the White House by telephone. The subject of this conversation was carefully guarded, however, and it was not known whether the call had been made by Mr. Huston after he learned that he was sought or at the instance of the President.

Speculation also tied together this telephone call with the message of Mr. Huston to the party's officers delaying the meeting. In it the chairman said that due to the holidays it would be imposible to get the committee together and that it would meet Thursday to discuss questions incident to the forthcoming campaigns.

Mr. Huston's telegram announcing the postponement said:

"Because of holiday engagements some of those invited to the meeting called for Monday find it inconvenient to attend. The meeting has therefore been postponed to Thursday, July 10, at the same hour. I hope you may find it possible to be present at that time."

Those to whom the telegram was sent were vice chairmen Ralph E. Williams, of Oregon; Daniel E. Pomeroy, of New Jersey, and Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, of Kentucky; Treasurer J. R. Nutt, of Ohio; General Counsel James Francis Burke, of Pennsylvania, and Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, and Representative Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the senatorial and congressional campaign committees, respectively.

A brief statement from the Republican national committee accompanied the telegram. It said they had been invited to Washington "to confer with the chairman on matters pertaining to the conduct of the forthcoming senatorial and congressional campaigns."

The resignation of Mr. Huston has been sought by many Republican

ANOTHER SUSPECTED AS LINGLE'S SLAYER

Witness Identifies Picture as That of Man Who Fired Fatal Shot.

GUNMAN GETS SENTENCE

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—Chicago's war on gangland started after the assassination of Jake Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, today saw a notorious gunman sentenced to jail for carrying concealed weapons and another hoodlum pointed out as the actual slayer of Lingle. This new character in the drama is George Hurley, reputed gambler and gangster.

Newspaper investigators said Hurley's picture had been identified by a witness to Lingle's slaying as that of the killer of the reporter and led to the theory that he was allied with the Al "Scarface" Capone gang.

Hurley is understoond to have been affiliated with the "Bugs" Moran gang and was connected with the Sheridian wave gambling casino protection for which, it was reported, Lingle stopped, leading to his assassination.

Both Pat Roche, State's attorney's chief investigator, and Charles F. Rathbun, special assistant State's attorney in charge of the Lingle inquiry, denied Hurley had been named as the killer. Rathbun declined to say whether Hurley's name had been drawn into the inquiry, but Roche although later released, after at first denying he ever had heard of Hurley, admitted Hurley had been arrested Newspaper investigators working on the Lingle case said it appeared that the State's attorney's office was endeavoring to keep secret Hurley's implication in the slaying. Hurley resided at the Commonwealth Hotel, which twice has been raided in the last three days.

Search for Jack Zuta, another Moran gangster fired on by gunmen Tuesday night while under a police escort across the Loop, went on today, police seeking to find him for questioning about the identity of the gunmen. Zuta had been arrested in connection with the Lingle killing but later released. Police now think he knows more than he admitted, wherefore the attempt to ambush him in the heart of the downtown business district, an attempt which cost the life of one and wounded another spectator.

Meanwhile, Gov. Emmerson at Springfield today signed extradition papers for returning Frank Foster to Chicago from Los Angeles. Foster, fugitive gangster, was indicted yesterday for the Lingle murder. He had

CITY PROGRAM TO CULMINATE HOLIDAY RITES

Huge Throng Is Expected to View Exercises and Fireworks.

OFFICIAL GREETING BY REICHELDERFER

Senator Fess to Deliver Chief Address at Festivities.

SECTIONS WILL HOLD OTHER OBSERVANCE

Heavy Exodus From Capital as Extra Day Is Given to U. S. Workers.

Patriotic ceremonies will vie with athletic contests and pyrotechnic displays today as the National Capital celebrates the 154th anniversary of Independence Day.

Fair and cool weather will enable Washingtonians to take full advantage of the legal holiday either at one of the several community exercises or in some form of recreation. Many will follow the example of President Hoover, who has gone to Camp Rapidan, and leave town for the week-end.

Noisy hints as to what was in store for many of the residential sections came last night with infrequent discharge of divers fireworks. The most lavish of such display, however, will be delayed until tonight when the annual gigantic exhibition will be staged on the Monument grounds along with minor community displays.

Ceremonies at Monument.

The municipal ceremony will climax the day's observance. Among the thousands to gather around the Sylvan Theater will be Cabinet officers, members of the Diplomatic Corps, and high Government officials. Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the District Commissioners, will welcome the throng, and Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, will make the chief address.

Color will be added to the ceremony by a torchlight procession, a massing of colors by patriotic organizations, and an aircraft and antiaircraft demonstrtion. The Marine Band will play.

The pyrotechnic display will begin a few minutes after 9 o'clock. Bleacher seats will be on sale.

The Burroughs recreation park, Twentieth and Otis streets northeast, will be fittingly dedicated with an all-day celebration under the auspices of the Burroughs Citizens Association, with the Brookland and the Rhode Island Citizens Associations cooperating.

Ball Game and Parade.

Preceded by a baseball game and a grand parade, the dedication ceremony will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning. Lieut. F. B. Butler, assistant director of the Office of Public Buildings and Parks, will be chief speaker.

An afternoon of athletic contests

CONGRESS QUITS AS HOOVER WINS NEARLY EVERY POINT; CITY APPROPRIATION VOTED

Lump Sum of $9,500,000 Assured as Conferees Break Deadlock.

MEASURE SALVAGED AT ELEVENTH HOUR

Total Appropriation to Capital Amounts to $45,781,002.

LARGEST SUM EVER AGREED ON FOR CITY

Head of Nation Appears at aCpitol in Dinner Suit to Sign Bills.

Rescued as the curtain was falling at the Capitol, the 1931 District appropriation bill became a law last night.

President Hoover, who had journeyed down to the Capitol from the White House in a dinner suit, signed the battered measure at 10:32 o'clock.

The Senate had accepted the conference report on the bill a half hour before this, four hours after the House accepted it. This completed congressional action on the measure.

$9,500,000 Lump Sum.

In its final form, the bill, a record-breaker, provides for a Federal contribution of $9,500,000, which is a half million more than was provided in the 1930 bill.

Senate and House conferees on the bill agreed on the $9,500,000 figure at 5 o'clock, thereby breaking a five-weeks deadlock and saving the bill from oblivion.

The bill carriers a total of $45,781,002, the greatest sum ever carried in a local supply bill. It is even more than was recommended by the Budget Bureau.

Budget Bureau Figure.

The Budget Bureau recommended $45,580,028, the House provided $45,333,117, and the Senate $44,420,002.

The bill became a law after the District had been technically broke for three days, its funds tied up because Congress had failed to pass legislation authorizing it to spend anything.

Fearing that somebody might raise a legal technicality, Senate and House conferees at the last minute wrote in a provosion to make the appropriation bill retroactive to July 1, the beginning of the fiscal year.

Result Called Compromise.

Looked at from the standpoint of cold figures, the agremeent on the Federal contribution was a compromise. Toward the end of the fight, Senate confrees had demanded $10,000,000 and those of the House had insisted on $9,000,000.

Looked at from the satndpoint of past history, however, the agreement on $9,500,000 was a real triumph for the Senate, and so everybody on Capitol Hill regarded it.

From the time the commission form of government was established here, the House has been dictating financial affairs of the city. When the cost of the city was borne on a 50-50 basis, the Federal Government and

Norris Versus Norris Knots Nebraska Race

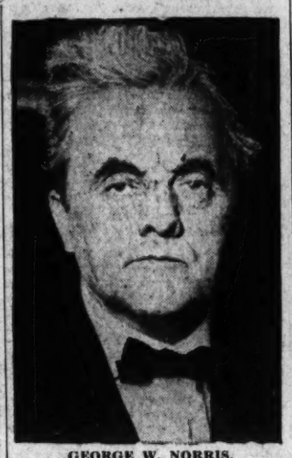
Senator's Forces Angry as Grocer-Namesake Files for Office.

Lincoln, Nebr., July 3 (A.P.).—The Republican primary contest for selection of a candidate for United States senator in Nebraska went into a jumble today after a second George W. Norris, a Broken Bow grocery clerk, announced his candidacy.

This candidate with name and initials identical with those of the veteran Nebraska senator whom he seeks to unseat in a six-sided primary race, first filed for the office of railway commissioner, but later switched to the senatorial race, followers here of the incumbent were advised.

Recognizing the futility of entering a primary election without some distinction between the two men, Attorney General C. A. Sorensen, spokesman for Senator Norris, immediately prepared to demand a court ruling.

Senator Norris' followers, Sorensen said, in the absence of any legal precedence in the State, will ask for a mandatory court order compelling a distinct designation between the two candidates by manipulation of either names or initials.



GEORGE W. NORRIS.

Sorensen charged northwestern Nebraska politicians opposed to Senator Norris had induced the second Norris

Final Session Is Marked by Denunciations of President.

SENATE SURRENDERS TO CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Pension Measure Passed in Form Desired by White House.

$250,000 APPROVED FOR WICKERSHAM UNIT

Consideration of Pact Is to Be Begun in Special Session Monday.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Senate finally decided to quit late last night after spending the day denouncing the President, but giving him, nevertheless, everything he asked for and in the exact manner in which he sought it.

The House had quit work shortly after 6 o'clock, Speaker Longworth turning the gavel over to Representative Mapes to hang around with a corporal's guard and formally adjourn when the Senate got ready, while he caught the 6:30 train for Cincinnati. Other House leaders also went on their way, the understanding being that if the Senate carried on its monkey shines over the week-end the corporal's guard could meet every three days and recess, refusing to transact any business.

With this maneuver by the House the fight, or rather the noise, that had centered all afternoon on the veterans' pension bill in the Senate began to die out. It simmered a long time, though.

President Signs Pension Bill.

The conference report on this bill in which the Senate surrendered virtually everything was not adopted until 9:30 o'clock, but then it was by a vote of 48 to 14. The President signed it shortly afterward. The Democratic-Progressive fight for a $10 to $60 monthly pension range instead of the $12 to $40 House rate had proved to be little more than a gesture after all. The five Progressives and nine Democrats who voted against the bill on the final roll call did so in order to maintain a semblance of consistency. They were Black, Caraway, Connally, Glass, Harrison, McKellar, Swanson and Thomas of Oklahoma, Democrats and Cutting, Howell, Johnson, La Follette and Norris, Progressives.

In so far as actual accomplishments were concerned, the Senate could have easily quit several days ago.

Earlier in the day it surrendered without so much as a struggle on the $250,000 appropriation for the President's National Law Enforcement Commission. Previously, it had voted only $50,000 for this commission. The House said if the President wanted it the commission should have $250,000. That is what the commission gets, the Senate, despite Senator Glass, voting, 37 to 22, for the higher amount.

Record of Senate Cited.

Just why the Senate lets itself in for such a picture as this is hard to understand. Looking back, the only thing that can be readily recalled which the President has not gotten from Congress since he came into office was the national origins immigration repeal, now long since forgotten and over which the President did not become aroused.

Yet his long session with the Senate, almost continuous since he came into office, has been a series of hammerings and temporary rebuffs with victory in the end. The Senate made a lot of noise about the Farm Board and then gave the President what he wanted, then a lot about the debenture and finally gave the President what he wanted and so on one thing after another.

Its gestures on the veterans' pensions and the Law Enforcement Commission appropriation characterize its

ITALY'S AUTO TARIFF CALLED NO REPRISAL

EYE KEPT ON PORTUGAL

(Associated Press.)

A Commerce Department study of the increased tariff duty imposed by Italy has brought Secretary Lamont to the belief that the action can not properly be considered a reprisal against the new American tariff law.

Shortly after the State Department had been notified officially of the promulgation of the new rates, the result of the Commerce Department's study and a statement by Secretary Lamont were made public. Secretary Stimson declined comment.

The Commerce Department found that the schedules of the Italian customs rewritten under the latest announcement increased the charges on passenger cars by weight to a point two or three times as high as those formerly prevailing, but abolished an ad valorem duty formerly imposed and consequently do not make as substantial an increase as was first feared.

"The Department of Commerce does not consider that the action of the Italian government in increasing tariff on automobiles and trucks is in the nature of a reprisal," Secretary Lamont said. "The increase in Italian tariff on the products is part of the established protective tariff policy of Italy to conserve their own large automobile manufacturing industry and to relieve their present unemployment. This policy has been in operation for some years and under its pressure American exports of automobiles and trucks to Italy had decreased in value from $4,300,000 in 1925 to $1,270,000 in 1929, the latter figure constituting less than one-half of 1 per cent of our exports of these commodities.

"The Italian protective policy has likewise affected their imports of automobiles and trucks from France, Germany, Belgium, Austria and other

SWANSON WILL LEAD NAVY PACT SESSION

Naming of Democrat Results From Apathy of G. O. P. Senate Leaders.

MEETING TO BE MONDAY

By ALBERT W. F[illegible]

Senator Swanson (Democrat), of Virginia, who was an outstanding leader of the League of Nations forces during the Versailles Treaty debates and is author of the Swanson reservations to the world court, will take the lead in presenting the London Naval Treaty to the Senate when the special session convenes. He will make the opening speech instead of Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee.

President Hoover has called the special session to meet Monday and the drive for speedy ratification will then be pressed with the hope that a quorum will be available at all times until the final vote.

The President discussed the treaty with Senators Watson, Reed, Allen and Walcott at the White House yesterday. If a vote can be forced within a week or ten days the chances of ratification will be greatly increased, while if the debate continues for more than a week the prospects will admittedly grow dim in view of the determination of senators to leave the Capital. The treaty supporters are mapping out plans for a record-breaking campaign for speedy action.

The selection of Mr. Swanson has resulted from the rather unusual situation which will confront the treaty proponents when the battle begins. Nominally, a Republican would be expected to fire the opening gun in support of the treaty program which is to become an important factor in the coming congressional campaigns and which may be listed as one of the administration's achievements. But Senator Watson, the Republican leader, has been lukewarm in his support of the pact and his State is against it. Senator Borah likewise has declined to become an enthusiast for the treaty and

Rum Chaser Imperils Six by Ramming Boat

Lightless Dry Vessel Suddenly Appears Out of Darkness to Sink $10,000 Cruiser in Delaware River; Canoe Saves Party.

Philadelphia, July 3 (A.P.).—The Arbutus, a 30-foot cabin cruiser, owned by Arthur T. Klatt, of this city, was rammed and sunk last night in the Delaware River about 40 miles below here by the Government rum chaser No. 183, from Cape May, N. J.

In the party were Klatt, his wife Emma, their son Theodore, 17; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Allen, and their 8-month-old baby, Chester, jr. All were saved.

The cruiser, according to members of the party, is a total loss, as it was crushed in by the sharp bow of the Government speed boat. The loss is placed at about $10,000, including boat and contents.

"It was a close shave for us," said Allen today. "We left Wilmington, Del., last night with all our running lights burning brightly. It was very dark.

"All of a sudden, out of the darkness, came this big rum chaser, without lights, and headed straight for us. We yelled, blew our horn, and then the next thing we knew there was a crash.

"Fortunately we had a canoe towing astern as a tender. We filled, heeled and sank in shallow water, but we managed to get the canoe painter cast off, and the boat alongside, and got the women and children in it safely."

The rum chaser took the party aboard. They admitted, Allen said, that they were not showing running lights, as they said they had been lying in wait for rumrunners.

Backfire of Auto Sends 38 Horses on Stampede

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—Stampeded by the backfiring of an automobile, 38 artillery horses galloped wildly through the placid streets of the Bronx today, sending children and adults fleeing for shelter and finally being rounded up by soldiers and police.

Seventy-eight horses of the 105th Field Artillery were coralled inside a 3-foot stone fence in Van Cortlandt Park, being acclimated to the outdoors in preparation for the annual encampment at Great Bend, N. Y. A passing automobile backfired repeatedly and the stampede was on. Soldiers managed to keep 40 of the horses confined but the rest went over the fence and away.

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 3 (A.P.). The famous transatlantic and transpacific plane, carrying Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith and three companions, left Chicago at 6:45 a. m., central standard time, today. It will remain here tonight.

Emerges in Fuzzy Splendor When Guard Sees Chunky Bundle on Truck.

Ossining, N. Y., July 3 (A.P.).—Jack Levy, of Brooklyn, who matriculated at Sing Sing with the class of '29, thought he had things all sewed up today for a getaway from the prison.

His pals in the mattress factory, where he worked, bound him into a mattress, with feathers around his head so he could breathe, a razor in one hand so he could cut himself out when he got outside the walls, and hammer in the other hand with which to deal with any too-inquisitive guard.

The mattress was packed in its place in a bundle of six. The bundle, with several others, was loaded on a truck. A guard at the loading platform looked it over and passed it. Another guard at the door to the old many months' work. It will go down in history as making a lot of false starts and backing up.

Denunciation of President.

Denunciation of the President yesterday reached the high mark when Senator George, of Georgia, recalling the President's statement that he disliked to disapprove anything pertaining to World War veterans, exclaimed: "Well might he say that. But for that war carried on by the men now broken in mind and in body, Herbert Hoover would still be unknown in his native land, but would be driving pauper labor among backward people to add to dividends of British syndicates."

One after another Democratic and Progressive senator denounced him for plunging the country into a World War veterans' pension system. Senator Cutting, of New Mexico, and others said that assertions that the American Legion favored such legislation were false.

Statement by George.

Senator George said:

"The pension system has been foisted upon the country because the President of the United States was unwilling to assume responsibility for leadership and come to the members of the House and Senate and deal fairly with the question of adequate relief to the disabled veterans of the World War."

Senate conferees had earlier in the day receded on virtually all of their issues with the House just as it had been predicted they would do. The conference by its very nature and the circumstances attending passage of the veterans' bill was hardly more than perfunctory.

The only important item the Senate conferees saved was that removing the Comptroller General as a reviewing agency of rulings of the Veterans' Bureau. This was about the only important provision in the bill sponsored by the American Legion. It has been trying to get this for a long time.

Pensions Are Fixed.

The bill as it was finally passed gives monthly pensions ranging from $12 to $40 a month to veterans disabled since the war and who may become disabled in the future, their disabilities having no relation to the war. Veterans who pay income taxes and those disabled by their own misconduct are excluded.

Mr. Hoover sent Senator Watson a letter earlier in the day saying he would not accept the higher rates and other provisions placed in the bill by the Senate. The majority Senate conferees gave this as their reason for acquiescing in the House bill.

Senator LaFollette pointed out, however, that the Senate and "everybody else" had known the President's position when it voted the higher rates and that the letter was no excuse for backtracking now. The whole thing had been a set-up from beginning to end.

Norris Flays Democrats.

Democrats had planned to accept the conference report earlier in the day with the explanation that they had done the best they could do. Mr. Norris denounced them so strongly though that they perked up and tried to muster their forces for a finish fight which they could not do.

Mr. Norris was on his feet virtually at the sounding of the bell saying "Something ought to be said for the farmers of this country, &c.," and lambasting the tariff bill. He seemed really to hate to quit.

The Senate comes back Monday under a presidential call for consideration of the treaty.

President at Capitol.

The Senate formally adjourned at 10:38 o'clock and the House quit at 10:35, the few remaining House members having spent the evening over in the Senate.

President Hoover, who had come down to the Capitol to sign bills, held an informal levee for senators in the President's room just after the Senate adjourned.

The last few minutes of the Senate were taken up in confirming nominations.

Johnson Lauds Hoover For Pension Bill Veto

Representative Royal C. Johnson (Republican), of South Dakota, chairman of the House committee on World War veterans' legislation, in a radio address last night over the Columbia Broadcasting System, sketched the progress of veterans' bills during this session and lauded President Hoover for his recent veto on a similar measure.

"In my judgment, the President could not have done otherwise," he said. "It was manifestly unfair and discriminatory. In my judgment, it is time that politics be eliminated in the discussion of veterans relief, and no one can deny but that there has been much politics in the discussion during the last session. No political party can eventually derive any benefit by advocating discriminatory legislation, and the members of no one political party can possibly be the only citizens who desire exact justice for those who defended the Nation."

Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, American high commissioner of Haiti, will be withdrawn immediately after the inauguration of a new president to succeed Eugene Rogin in the fall, Secretary Stimson announced yesterday.

Additional charges of reckless driving and operating without a permit were also placed against the young man.

CITY CHIEFS HAPPY AT DISTRICT BUDGET

BALANCE ON HAND CITED

Despite the fact that agreement by Congress on the District appropriations bill for the current fiscal year came as something of an anticlimax to the tension which has gripped District officials for some time, the fact that the agreement finally had been reached with a victory for the Senate was a matter of joy to District officials late yesterday and last night.

The Commissioners refrained from comment on the fight between the Senate and the House, but it was obvious that they were glad that the Senate had forced the House to yield on what they considered has been the arbitrary attitude taken toward the government of the National Capital.

There was a jubilation out of all proportion to the difference, which will be made in actual fact in District affairs between $9,000,000 insisted on by Representative Simmons, chairman of the House District subcommittee on appropriations, and the $9,500,000 finally forced by Senate conferees headed by Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, chairman of the corresponding committee of the Senate and head of the Senate conferees.

Reichelderfer Is Pleased.

Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer, however, couched his comment in careful words. He said that he and the other Commissioners were pleased that Congress had reached an agreement. The Commissioners, Dr. Reichelderfer said, had been confident that Congress would not lose sight of the vital importance of the District appropriations act.

He made no comment on the increased Federal appropriation forced by the Senate, although he left no doubt that he was pleased.

The brief delay in enactment of the District appropriations bill, Dr. Reichelderfer said, would obviate suffering by District employes who would have been compelled to do without their pay unless a bill had been enacted before next Tuesday, the first pay day for a considerable group of per diem employes.

Several large contracts for street improvement works are pending and they will be awarded by the Commissioners Monday or Tuesday. There are contracts for other public works which are all ready for formal award, but which have been held up because of the prohibition against incurring obligations without authorization and have been only awaiting final enactment of the appropriation bill.

Memorandum of Auditor.

In a memorandum to Commissioner Reichelderfer yesterday, A. R. Pilkerton, acting auditor of the District, advised him that "there is in the general fund" to the credit of the District in the Treasury, the sum of $14,693,229.37, and in the trust and special funds $1,080,594.50; in all $15,773,823.87.

"As you probably know, there are many outstanding obligations which, when paid, will considerably reduce this amount.

"These figures have been verified with the records of the Treasury Department and are transmitted to you for your pleasure in the matter."

The apparent surplus in the Treasury to the credit of the District, however, is based on the condition of District fiscal affairs at the end of the last fiscal year and the figures given by Mr. Pilkerton do not mean that the District will have a surplus of $15,000,000 or anything like that sum as a surplus at the end of the current fiscal year, because the appropriations bill approved yesterday is designed to use almost all of the surplus funds to the credit of the District now in the Treasury as well as to employ expected revenues which will be derived in the course of the current year.

Jury Frees Driver On Liquor Charge

George A. Shurland Denies Fleeing After Hitting Another's Auto.

George H. Shurland, of Eighth street southwest near E street, was acquitted by a jury in Police Court yesterday before Judge Gus A. Schuldt on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. The jury was out less than ten minutes.

Testimony was to the effect that Mr. Shurland's automobile had collided with that of H. E. Clarkson at Eighth and I streets northwest on the afternoon of June 4, and that he had fled from the scene of the accident.

Mr. Schurland denied that he had been drinking and that he had fled. Attorney John P. Mullen, who represented the man, drew from other witnesses the information that Mr. Schurland had been struck in the eye and also attempted to prove that Mr. Clarkson and Policeman Frank A. Carr, who made the arrest, were friends. The attorney also drew from the policeman the admission that Mr. Clarkson wanted to prosecute the case.

$150 Fine Ordered In Rum Conviction

Joint Defendant Is Acquitted; Jury Trial Demanded by Another.

Raymond Kitchings, Negro, 23 years old, was convicted in Police Court yesterday on a charge of possessing liquor and was sentenced by Judge John P. McMahon to pay a fine of $150 or serve 90 days in jail. William Jennings, 17-year-old Negro, who was arrested with Kitchings and who was tried jointly, was acquitted.

Testimony was to the effect that the two had been arrested in a ramshackle automobile which was found to contain twelve half-gallons of liquor.

Victor Humbert Imbress, 29 years old, of S street northwest near Second, arraigned before Judge McMahon on a possession charge, pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial. Policeman E. L. Hale, of the Third Precinct, reported that he arrested Imbress when he saw the man make a delivery of liquor.

Man Injured by Automobile.

Taken to Casualty Hospital after being hit by an automobile on Fourth street near F street northwest, Wilfred Spearman, 39 years old, of 615 Fourth street northwest, was treated for bruises of the body and right leg. The car, police said, which struck him was driven by Louis Rato, 37 years old, of Seat Pleasant, Md.

HOUSE PASSES BUDGET BILL FOR DISTRICT IN COMPROMISE

the District Government each paying half, the House changed it to 60-40, requiring the District to pay 60 per cent.

60-40 Law Nullified.

Then six years ago the House nullified the 60-40 law by writing into the bill a provision for an arbitrary lump sum of $9,000,000. This has been continued ever since, although the city's budget has increased steadily and although the Senate has protested every year.

Enactment of the bill left an emergency resolution lying in a Capitol pigeon hole. Had this been enacted, the city would have gotten only enough money for its running expenses, and the $14,000,000 for building projects which the 1931 bill carries would have been lost for a year, with serious unemployment as a consequence.

An hour after the conferees agreed, Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, submitted the conference report to the House and it was adopted amid cheers.

To the weary representatives, the announcement of an agreement was welcome news, as they were all anxious to get home.

Fiscal Study Proposed.

Immediately after the conference report was approved by the House, Representative Simmons called up a resolution for creation of a select House committee of seven to make a study of fiscal relations and taxation here in general.

The resolution was adopted, and the committe is expected to be appointed shortly. It probably will meet here a month or so before the next regular session.

The committee probably will recommend a drastic new taxation scheme for the District, one calling for an inheritance tax, possibly an income tax, and taxes on many articles that now are not taxed.

Representative Louis C. Crampton (Republican), of Michigan, author of the $9,000,000 lump sum policy, made a somewhat sour speech just after the conference report had been adopted.

Crampton Raps Senate.

After praising the fight made by House conferees and assailing the Senate, he declared the action taken would not be regarded as a precedent.

"It does not mean," he said, "that the House will agree to $9,500,000 in the future, nor that it even will agree to $9,000,000."

Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, chief Senate conferee on the bill, called up the report a little after 9 o'clock, but action was not taken on it until Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, had made a political speech.

Statement by Glass.

Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, announced that he had refused to sign the report because he still regarded the Senate as an integral part of the legislative branch of the Government.

The Virginian was for holding out for more money. Earlier he had assailed the attitude of the House as arrogant.

Once both houses had acted, the bill was signed, in the House by Representative Carl E. Mapes, of Michigan, Acting Speaker, and in the Senate by Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, who was presiding in the Senate. Then it was ready for President Hoover.

Deadlock Lasted Month.

The deadlock on the bill, which began more than a month ago, was broken after the Senate and House conferees had been in session since early morning. A few minutes after 5 o'clock Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, emerged from the conference room. He was smiling.

"Well," he said, "it's all over. We get $9,500,000, with no strings attached."

What he meant by that was that the additional half million dollars is no way contingent upon a study and a decision by a presidential commission. It has been proposed (but not by any of the conferees) that the Federal contribution be placed at $10,000,000, with the understanding that the extra million be impounded until a commission decided whether or not it was justified.

Speaker Given Credit.

Just who finally made an agreement possible has not been revealed, but it is believed to have been Speaker Longworth.

Early in the afternoon, House conferees went over and asked Longworth for instructions. Then they returned and began negotiations with the senators that finally ended in a settlement. Several times, representatives and senators left the conference room to go into a huddle in another room nearby.

In addition to the controversial question of how much the Federal Government should contribute toward the city's upkeep there were 140 other disputed items in the bill. The Senate yielded on some of these, and the House yielded on others.

Each Side Gives In.

Senate conferees gave in to House conferees on the municipal center appropriation, so that now the bill calls for $3,000,000 to purchase land for that project. The Senate had reduced the figure to $1,000,000, but it finally agreed that now was an advantageous time to buy land.

The Senate reluctantly yielded to the House on the question of salary increases for District employes, with the result that something like $100,000 for increases was stricken from the bill. House conferees argued that the Brookhart bill, which is designed to give employes raises they were entitled to under the Welch act would take care of the District employes, an argument which certainly won't go so well at the District Building.

Dr. Tindall Retained.

House conferees agreed to the Senate amendment which authorizes the Commissioners to continue employment of Dr. William Tindall, the District's oldest employe. The veteran, who is in charge of the municipality's Information Bureau, has been in the service of the local government for more than 60 years. Under the retirement act he was threatened with compulsory retirement.

On the question of additional policemen, Senate and House conferees compromised. The bill now provides for 11, instead of 25, additional privates. As 14 members of the department are to be made lieutenants, however, 14 additional privates will be hired, so that the figure then will be 25 anyway. These additional men are needed so that there always will be rookies undergoing training at the Police School.

The House yielded to the Senate and allowed $11,000 for the rental of quarters for the House of Detention. The House had provided originally that the House of Detention be placed, rent free, in a building within the Municipal Center area.

Compromise on Kindergartens.

There also was a compromise on the question of reducing the number of kindergarten teachers. As that section of the bill now stands, no children under 5 years old may attend kindergarten, there shall be no afternoon kindergarten classes and one teacher shall be provided for every 25 kindergarten pupils.

The House, in order to reduce the number of kindergarten teachers and assign them to primary grades, had provided that each kindergarten teacher should have two classes, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. As a result of the compromise, fewer kindergarten teachers will be released from that work and those that remain will not have to work so hard.

The new schedule proposed by the House for increasing water rates remains in the bill, the Senate having yielded on this amendment. The Senate's schedule had been proposed by Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), Nebraska, but it was opposed by his colleague in the House, Representative Simmons.

The item of $250,000 for a subway at Fern street to eliminate the Chestnut street grade crossing in Takoma Park was left in the bill. This represented a victory for Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, and Representative Zihlman (Republican), of Maryland. Representative Simmons had been opposed to the item.

An informal dance was held last evening and another formal dance is scheduled for tonight. The girls are to visit the White House tomorrow.

A banquet tomorrow evening in the Mayflower marks the close of the convention. Kathryn Pangle heads the general convention committee from Alpha Gamma Chapter.

Husband Denies Wife's Allegation of Cruelty

Denying allegations made by his wife Mrs. Addie A. Brady, Census Office employe, in her suit for limited divorce, Basil L. G. Brady, of Fourth street northeast, near U street, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to dismiss his wife's motion for temporary alimony. The wife alleged cruelty on the part of her husband and declared she was in a nervous condition because her husband stayed out late at night and drank heavily.

Brady tells the court that his wife dislikes household duties and prefers to obtain employment outside the home and hire some one to look after the house and the children. He states that she was not forced to seek employment because of any cruelty on his part. Attorney Walter P. Plumley appears for the husband.

POLICE SHIFTS DUE IN WAKE OF BUDGET

Most Widespread Change in Years Looms as Funds Are Assigned.

MANY PROMOTIONS SEEN

Enactment of the District appropriation bill for the current fiscal year will mean the most widespread and important shift of personnel the Police Department has seen in years.

The bill provides for several additional officers, including one captain, sixteen lieutenants, sixteen sergeants, ten detective sergeants. All of these will not, of course, be new officers, but some of the ensuing promotions will result from creation of the increased number of jobs of higher ranks.

Lieut. B. A. Lamb, of the Traffic Bureau, who ranks first on the list in his particular field, is expected to be recommended by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, to be made a captain and retained on duty in the Traffic Bureau as assistant to Inspector E. R. Brown.

Lieut. L. I. H. Edwards, personnel officer at police headquarters, also is reported to be slated for promotion to captain, but he will be, it is said, retained on duty at headquarters.

Maj. Pratt yesterday said that he had not completed preparation of recommendations he will make to the District Commissioners and added that he would not make public the list he has prepared until it has been submitted to the Commissioners next week.

Embrey Promotion Seen.

Acting Lieut. Cy Embrey, of detective headquarters, is said to be among those slated for promotion to lieutenant. He is to remain at detective headquarters. Charles P. J. Weber recently was promoted from detective sergeant to lieutenant and assigned to precinct duty, but it is believed that Lieut. Weber will be brought back to duty in detective headquarters under the reorganization. This is in line with the plan to have a commissioned officer in charge of the detective bureau through the 24 hours of the day. Lieut. Embrey and Lieut. Weber will share responsibility with Acting Capt. Walter Emerson, all of whom will work under Inspector William S. Shelby, chief of the bureau.

The new appropriation bill will mean a considerable change in the personnel of the detective bureau. In addition to Acting Lieut. Embrey others who are said to rank high on the promotion list as prepared by the United States Civil Service Commission are Detective Sergts. Dennis Cullinane, Bagby King, John Fowler and Frank Varney. These men are reported to be slated for promotion to lieutenant and to be assigned to precinct duty. This is in line with the program of Maj. Pratt, approved by Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, to have a commissioned officer in charge of each precinct and bureau at all hours of the day and night with each commanding officer responsible for not more than eight hours continuous duty.

Carroll May Be Promoted.

Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman, head of the liquor and vice squad also is not too low on the list of men to be promoted. The sergeant, however, has been involved in several controversies in which protests were lodged that raids were made illegally. If he is promoted it will mean that he will be assigned to duty in a precinct and a new man named to head the special squad he has commanded.

There has been considerable gossip that his successor will be Detective R. B. Carroll of the First Precinct. Detective Carroll is reported to be among those whom Maj. Pratt will recommend for promotion to sergeant. There was another report that Detective Carroll would be assigned to detective headquarters, but it is thought that the official recommendations will give heed to the officer's wishes and that he will be assigned to regular uniformed duty as a sergeant.

This will make a vacancy in the First Precinct detective job and Capt. F. S. W. Burke is expected to recommend for that job A. D. Mansfield, who is the special liquor officer of the precinct.

Sergt. Milton D. Smith, of the Traffic Bureau, is another man who is reported as being in line for promotion to lieutenant.

Other Changes Probable.

Among others whose rating on the promotion list indicates that they will be promoted to be lieutenants are Sergt. T. C. Bragg, Thirteenth Precinct; W. C. Curtiss, Eighth Precinct; J. J. Tolson, Eleventh Precinct, and George Weber, who has been assigned to duty in the district attorney's office for a considerable time.

Sergt. A. W. Guyer, one of the night inspectors of the department, also is thought likely to stand so high as to mean that he will be recommended for promotion, and the same thing is true of Sergt. A. C. Belt, of the Third Precinct.

Precinct Detective C. C. Stepp, of the Ninth Precinct, and Private Harry C. Blackman, of the First Precinct, are among those who are thought to stand so high as to mean that they will be promoted to sergeant. George Hullmuth, of the Sixth Precinct, and R. A. Johnson, of the Fourteenth Precinct, also are said to be in line for recommendation for promotion to sergeant.

$20,000 Is Added To Fraud Charge

Film Company Says Auditor Stole $70,000, Instead of $50,000.

Embezzlements charged against Edgar L. Jacobs, of 3501 Rittenhouse street, Washington auditor for the Paramount-Publix Corporation, were raised from $50,000 to $70,000 in a suit filed against him in the District Supreme Court yesterday by the film company.

Jacobs was arraigned in Police Court Wednesday on a charge of misappropriating $50,000 of Paramount-Publix funds. In the suit filed yesterday it is charged that prior to July 1, 1930, Jacobs had received checks and money orders for the firm, but had applied them to his own use. The total amount of the alleged embezzlement is placed at $70,000.

The corporation, through Attorneys Frank F. Nesbit and Charles E. Pledger, sued out garnishments against five local financial institutions in an effort to locate some of the missing money. Jacobs had been employed by the film company for the past two years, but the alleged shortage was not discovered until July 1, it was stated.

Delphian Society Officers Meet.

Officers of the Delphian Society held an executive meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles F. Schoonmaker at Bell Haven, overlooking the Potomac River. Plans for the winter's work were discussed.

Coste Tries Transatlantic Airplane With New Motor

France's Foremost Airman Gives Power Plant Test in 14-Hour Flight Preparatory to Second Attempt at Ocean Crossing.

Villacoublay, France, July 3 (A.P.). Capt. Dieudonne Coste, France's foremost airman, today took out his big red Breguet Question Mark for a trial spin of about fourteen hours with a new motor embodying certain important modifications.

In preparation for his forthcoming attempt at the westward transatlantic flight from Paris to New York, he started from Le Bourget airfield at 6:52 a. m. (12:52 A. M. E. S. T.), intending to stay up for about fifteen hours. He was accompanied by Maurice Bellonte, his trusty mechanic and wireless operator.

All during the morning he cruised about France without being reported from any city or village, and when the afternoon set in his disappearance into the void of the sky roused rumors that he had actually slipped away on the great Atlantic adventure that baffled him last year.

Eventually, however, he was sighted over the coast of Normandy, heading back toward Paris. At 9 p. m. (3 p. m. E. S. T.), without fuss or feathers the Question Mark jolted to a stop on the airfield here.

Capt. Coste and Bellonte said the trial flight had given them every satisfaction. They will now proceed to mount a new motor for their Transatlantic flight, for which they now are awaiting only favorable weather and a last trial run with the newly mounted motor.

The principal object of today's flight was to test some changes in the carburization of the motor, which achieves 650 horsepower. As there is a full moon about July 10, it now is expected that Capt. Coste will take advantage of that season for the start of his transatlantic flight.

U.S. AND FRENCH TAX SCHEME NOT FINAL

Arrangements for Relief of Double Levy on Trade Needs Legislation.

STATEMENT IS ISSUED

(Associated Press.)

The arrangement recently worked out by American and French experts to relieve American corporations of double taxation on business done in France is not regarded by Secretary Mellon as representing final action.

In a statement yesterday the Secretary of the Treasury said legislation is necessary before any such international agreement could be concluded. Legislation to that end is pending.

Mr. Mellon also said that Great Britain was not included in the negotiations as previously reported, and that no negotiations with Great Britain were contemplated by the Treasury at present.

Announcement that a "satisfactory agreement" had been reached in the Franco-American discussions was made Wednesday by E. C. Alvord, special assistant to the Secretary. He explained yesterday that he had meant only to say that the experts had reached an arrangement satisfactory to American business interest.

In his statement yesterday Secretary Mellon stated the situation as follows:

"Informal and preliminary negotiations have been carried on between our representatives and representatives of the French government with reference to the tax situation existing in France. Mr. Ellsworth C. Alvord, special assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, returned from Paris about a week ago and has gone over in detail with the Treasury officials the results of the preliminary negotiations. However, no agreement has been entered into and no action by the Treasury has been taken with respect thereto.

"Inasmuch as the Treasury is not empowered to enter into agreements of this nature, it can take no definite action until after legislative authority has been granted, which obviously can not be obtained prior to the next session of the Congress. Any agreement by the Treasury must, of course, conform to legislative authority. It is impossible, therefore, at this time to make any definite statement either as to the possibility of a final agreement or as to any of its terms."

Californian Sues Alien Custodian

Morris Stulsaft Launches Action to Recover Sum of $25,000.

Morris Stulsaft, of San Francisco, Calif., filed suit yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court against Howard Sutherland, Alien Property Custodian, and Walter O. Woods, Treasurer of the United States, seeking to recover $25,000, which he claims is being withheld.

Stulsaft alleges that on April 18, 1925, he contracted with the then Alien Property Custodian to purchase certain lands in San Francisco County, Calif., which had been seized under the trading-with-the-enemy act, and that he deposited $25,000 as evidence of good faith with the understanding that the sum was to be applied to the purchase price. This money, he states, he expects to prove was transmitted to the Treasurer.

The plaintiff declares that shortly after he had made the deposit he was notified by the custodian that the contract could not be carried out and the property was transferred to other parties. Since then he asserts he has made repeated demands for the return of his deposit but his efforts have been unavailing.

$250,000 SUM VOTED FOR LAW STUDY UNIT

37-to-22 Ballot in Senate Approves of Amount Sought by Hoover.

PUBLIC SESSIONS ASKED

(Associated Press.)

By a vote of 37 to 22, the Senate yesterday gave to the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission another $250,000 to carry on its general study of enforcement of criminal statutes.

It thereby accepted the amount requested by the President and approved by the House in place of its previous provision for only $50,000 to limit the commission's study to prohibition.

Following the Senate's earlier action denying the larger fund for a continuation of the general inquiry, Mr. Hoover served notice that the broader investigation would be carried on by funds obtained from private sources if Congress did not provide it.

Thirty-one Republicans, five Democrats and the one Farmer-Labor senator, Shipstead, of Minnesota, voted for the $250,000 appropriation, while seventeen Democrats and five Republicans opposed it.

In a speech preceding the vote, Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, urged the commission to hold public sessions in the future if it expected to add "force and effect" to its recommendations for legislation. The Nebraskan said he planned to offer a resolution looking to simplification of court procedure, but had withheld it in the hope the commission would be of some help in this direction.

Asserting the Nation's judicial procedure had not kept pace with civilization, Senator Norris said court procedure should be so simplified as to bring "speedy justice" and relief of congestion on criminal court dockets.

ITALY'S AUTO LEVY HELD NO REPRISAL countries, and the new rates apply equally to all countries."

Lisbon, July 3 (A.P.).—John Glover South, American Minister to Portugal, has entered discussions with Portuguese officials in an effort to avert threatened reprisals against the increased duties on Portuguese products in the Hawley-Smoot tariff measure.

Mr. South believes that the conversations are proceeding satisfactorily. In his opinion, the great increase in the duty on manufactured cork articles will affect only 3½ per cent of Portugal's total production, and despite the higher rates America purchases will continue.

Reports current here that Portugal intended to increase by 50 per cent the duties on American automobiles as part of her reprisal against the American increases remained vague tonight. It is believed they are being taken up by the legation.

60-Day Term Imposed On Intoxication Charge

Charged and convicted on a drunkenness charge, Thomas Clancey, 84 years old, was sent to jail yesterday by Judge Gus A. Schuldt to serve a term of 60 days in jail. At the same time the court took the man's personal bond on a disorderly charge while a charge of assault was nolle prossed.

The man was arrested Wednesday night on Pennsylvania avenue northwest near the Capitol by Policeman R. Schleichert, of the Sixth Precinct. The policeman declared that the defendant was drunk and had attacked a Chinese, who did not care to prosecute.

Thumb, Injured by Saw, Amputated.

James Davidson, 48 years old, of 3117 Warder street northwest, while at work yesterday at Fourth and H streets northwest, cut his thumb so badly the member had to be amputated. The man was sawing when the tool slipped, inflicting the injury.

CHINA MISSIONARIES ABUSED; U. S. ACTS

Protest Ordered After Two Americans Are Paraded in Suiping Streets.

20,000 SLAIN IN BATTLE

(Associated Press.)

After receiving a report that American missionaries had been driven through the streets of Suiping, Honan, China, with sticks, the State Department announced yesterday the American Legation at Pieping had been instructed to make "urgent protests."

A report from Frank P. Lockhart, consul general at Hankow, described how the Rev. Thomas I. Lee, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Deaconess Thonea Sandland, of Grygis, Minn., were paraded through the streets of Suiping and roughly handled by a local political organization.

Earlier, the department said, Lockhart had received a telegram dated June 24 from an American missionary at Sinyangchow reporting that on the morning of June 23 the missionaries had suffered indignities at Suiping.

The State Department said the local organizations reported as responsible for the indignities appeared to be the propaganda bureau and the local branch of the Kuomintang.

Instructions have been sent the American Legation in Peiping, the department said, that protests are to be made immediately to the highest military authorities now in control in Suiping. Further instructions have been sent, the department added, that even if Suiping is now in the hands of the northern faction, a protest should be made to Nanking, referring to the alleged responsibilities of the Kuomintang party organizations.

Shanghai, July 3 (A.P.).—Nationalist dispatches today claimed government troops overwhelmingly crushed southern rebels in a three-day battle near Hengchow, Hunan Province. Fifteen thousand rebels and 5,000 Nationalists were reported killed.

The victory follows one of two weeks ago when the southern rebels, chiefly from Kwangsi Province, reinforced by thousands of bandits, were defeated by Nationalists and driven southward after seriously threatening the tricities, Wuchang, Hankow and Hanyang.

Government troops, directed by President Chiang Kai-Shek, also recaptured at that time the cities of Yochow and Changsha after battles in which more than 100,000 men were engaged.

Business Changes Seen by McFadden

Adjustment Will Be Both Drastic and Painful, Says House Leader.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman McFadden, of the House banking committee, said yesterday in the House that the United States and the world are undergoing "a major economic and business adjustment which is and will be both drastic and painful."

"These consequences will be particularly severe in the United States," he said, "because they will force many people to recede from the standards of living and expenditure attained during the past fourteen years."

Mr. McFadden said some of the readjustment is due to the natural change in basic economic laws, but added, "A large part is due to mismanagement of our national affairs and a still larger part is due to a deliberately contrived and executed program which has as its object the impoverishment of the people of the United States."

New Haven Road Asks Property Revaluation

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. yesterday petitioned the District of Columbia Supreme Court far a writ of mandamus to require the Interstate Commerce Commission to investigate, ascertain and report the true value of its property and specifically to include its terminals in New York City and Boston, Mass.

Through Attorneys Choate, Hall & Stewart, of Boston, and Harleigh H. Hartman, of Washington, former member of the Public Utilities Commission, of the District of Columbia, the company charges that valuation of its properties made by the commission as of January 14, 1930, was fixed at only $256,400,000. 15 BALLOONS PRIMED TO BEGIN RACE TODAY

Air Conditions Smooth, but Lawsuits Threaten Houston Contest.

NAVY BAG TO BE FIRST UP

Houston, Tex., July 3 (A.P.).—Fifteen balloons which will drift away tomorrow in the twentieth annual national elimination balloon race lay tonight on Bellaire Speedway, under canvas, deflated and flat like great tarpaulins.

The two pilots achieving the greatest distance from Houston will represent the United States in the international event starting from Cleveland September 1. The third U. S. representative, Ward Van Orman, has automatically qualified by virtue of his victory in last year's race.

Smooth weather appeared ahead for the aeronauts, according to the Weather Bureau forecast, but the promoters have encountered legal headwinds with perhaps more to come.

One suit was lodged against the committee of three which incorporated to sponsor the race, and others, said Capt. Fred S. Wilbur, one of the committeemen, were threatened. He had heard rumors, he added, that the plaintiffs might send a deputy sheriff out to the speedway tomorrow to try to attach the gate receipts.

Race to Begin Today.

The action was brought by creditors of the original promotors, who failed finally to obtain sufficient financial backing for the race. The present committee took over the task and apparently inherited at the same time, Capt. Wilbur said, the debts of its predecessors.

The forecast tonight was for clear weather. The wind was ideal, from the southeast, and its velocity was 12 miles an hour. A hard rain fell for a time this afternoon, but gave way to a bright sun after about two hours.

Brigadier General Frank Lahm of San Antonio and other distinguished military men were expected to attend the races.

The first balloon, that of Navy Captain T. G. W. Settle, last year's winner, is scheduled to soar away at 6 p. m., tomorrow. The others will follow at five minute intervals. Most of the day will be devoted to an air circus, and to inflating the bags.

The bride, who last fall played with Walter Hampden's Shakespearean Company in New York, gave her age as 30, while Ledoux's was given as 56. Both said they had been married before. Mrs. Ledoux said that she would give up the stage and assist her husband in his social work in the Bowery.

Mrs. Ledoux is the daughter of former Judge Henry P. White, of Kansas City, Mo., who presided at the trial of many Western outlaws years ago. He was also mayor of the city at one time.

Her great-great-grandfather was Gov. Tryon of North Carolina.

Representative Fred H. Zihlman, of Cumberland, Md., vice-supreme dictator, was reelected. He was in line for the supreme dictator's office but nominated Mr. Brandon in his place, saying his congressional duties required too much of his time.

Capt. Henry Busch, of Detroit, was elected supreme prelate.

TWO SHOT TO DEATH IN HEART OF DETROIT

Third Wounded by Bullets From Gun of Man Who Escapes in Crowd.

GANGSTER FEUD BLAMED

Detroit, July 3 (A.P.).—Two men were killed and one wounded today by an unidentified slayer who shot them as they sat in an automobile in front of the La Salle Hotel, then walked into the hotel lobby and lost himself in the crowd. The victims were identified as Detroit men. The dead men were Williams Cannon, 28 years old, and George Collins, 28. The wounded man is Mike Stitzel, 30.

They were seated in an automobile bearing Illinois license 1-154-454 shortly before 7 p. m., when the slayer stepped alongside and began shooting. Cannon was killed instantly. Collins died before he could be taken to a hospital.

Had "Police Badges."

While all three men had Detroit addresses, police expressed the belief that the double slaying had its inception in a Chicago gang feud. Police learned that Collins and Cannon came here from Chicago only a week ago. Cannon wore a badge marked "private detective." Collins had a "special police" badge. None of the three men carried guns.

At the hospital, Stitzel told police Cannon had been friendly with a Chicago girl, whose husband had been killed recently. Cannon, he said, had been warned to keep away from her. The girl's name, as given the police by Stitzel, is Julia Kuffel.

Persons at the scene of the shooting said two men were standing at the curbing near the parked automobile in which the three men were sitting. Without warning one of the two whipped out a pistol and began shooting. Five shots in all, were fired, all taking effect.

The assassin was described by witnesses as more than 6 feet tall and weighing about 250 pounds. They said he wore a blue suit and a panama hat. He sauntered into the hotel lobby, they said, after shooting down his victims. Police had obtained no information as to what became of the man several witnesses said was standing with the killer.

Sequel to Gang War.

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—After questioning the "girl friend" of one of the victims, Chicago police were convinced that the fatal shooting of two men and the wounding of a third in front of a Detroit hotel tonight was a sequel to the bitter warfare now waging between rival Chicago gangs.

The three men are said by police here to be members of the Moran gang and they believe the men fled Chicago to avoid questioning in connection with investigation of the killing of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Tribune reporter.

Julia Kuffel, who, officials say, was the sweetheart of William Dorland, alias Cannon, one of the victims, was arrested at a hotel here as soon as it was learned she was the owner of the automobile in which the men were slain. Ownership was traced through the license plates. She told police she had loaned her car to Dorland and Collins two weeks ago, but professed not to know Stitzel.

She said Dorland and Collins had been running liquor between Detroit and Chicago and also doing occasional hijacking. She expressed belief that the men were slain because of jealousy over Dorland's association with her.

been named as the purchaser of the pistol found beside Lingle's body.

Jack McGurn, reputed gunman for the Al Capone gang, was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $300 in court today for carrying a concealed weapon, but later was released on $10,000 bail pending an appeal.

Seize Car of Whisky.

A freight car load of whisky, valued by prohibition agents at $80,000, was seized in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards near the Union Station late today by investigators under Assistant State's Attorney Rathbun. Officials said it came from Boston and was consigned to George "Bugs" Moran.

The officers had lain in ambush since yesterday hoping to entrap some of the Moran gangsters who had been expected to call for the liquor. When none arrived, they decided to wait no longer. The investigators said they had obtained records showing that a carload of whisky a day was being shipped to the Moran gang from Boston.

The investigation into the Lingle slaying has been conducted under the assumption that he was killed by Moran gangsters. Lingle was known to be friendly to "Scarface Al" Capone, Moran's enemy.

Gangster Attempts Escape.

Los Angeles, July 3 (A.P.).—George Davis, arrested here with Frank Foster, Chicago gangster, accused of the murder of Alfred Lingle, newspaper reporter, was identified by police today through fingerprints as Harry Kirschenbaum, wanted in Detroit for alleged assault with intent to kill.

The assault, records show, occurred last May 6 against Joseph Burnstein and George Barret. Davis will be held for Detroit action.

Davis made a daring attempt to escape in the sheriff's office this afternoon. Switching hats with a fellow prisoner, the Chicago gangster walked from the office, but as he was about to make good his escape three detectives discovered his coup and pursued him, one officer capturing him with a flying tackle.

Youths Will Try Glide Across Sea

Pair Expects to Be Towed Over Atlantic Ocean by Liner.

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—Two Long Island youths, with a somewhat extraordinary idea about the Atlantic crossings sailed today hoping to put their plan into effect.

With Hugh Keasney and Robert Lewis aboard the liner Saturnia were two gliders equipped with pontoons. They announced that as soon as the ship passed Ambrose Light they would climb into one of the gliders, launch it and be towed to the Mediterranean by the liner. The extra glider was taken just in case of an accident. They said that while the glider was in the air over the water they would be able to communicate with the ship by telephone and that if the weather got too rough they would simply abandon their flight for the time being and go aboard the ship.

They said they would be able to get food from the ship by means of a rope.

Arlington Rules Lifted for Wiley

Officials Grant Request of Doctor's Widow for More Ornate Gravestone.

Rules regarding the size and wording on gravestones in Arlington Cemetery were relaxed to allow the burial of r. Harvey W. Wiley in the national cemetery it was learned yesterday. r. Harvey's widow, considering that he was entitled to a more ornate gravestone than those allowed, had decided to have him buried in Rock Creek Cemetery, until officials announced their decision.

r. Wiley, prominent as the man who was largely instrumental in having the national pure food laws passed early in the century, was entitled to military burial, being a veteran of the Civil War. It was planned to have on his monument the words, "Father of the Pure Food Law."

As soon as Mrs. Wiley heard of the decision of the War epartment, she went to the burial ground and chose a spot in the section reserved for veterans of the War Between the Staets, known as the "field of the dead." He was buried with full military honors, a squad firing the last salute and an Army bugler sounding "Taps"

SOUTHERN CROSS AT SALT LAKE CITY

Springs at 3:15 p. m. (M. S. T.), the plane was again sighted over Cherokee, 85 miles east of Rock Springs, at 5:21 p. m. (M. S. T.).

Headwinds have prevailed most of the way from Chicago to Cheyenne, according to weather reports, but after leaving Cheyenne there was a tail wind. The wind shifted against the plane again in southwestern Wyoming.

The Southern Cross passed over Cheyenne at an altitude of about 300 feet, apparently for purposes of identification, as its progress had not been reported until it reached Wyoming. The plane also was flying low as it passed over Rock Springs.

At Oakland, according to Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, chief of its crew, he will probably sell the sturdy trimotored Fokker that will have carried him over two oceans and around the world.

"I hate to part with it," he admitted sadly before he took off from Curtiss-Reynolds Airport at Chicago at 6:45 a. m. (Central standard time) Thursday. "But I'll have no more use for it. There are no more oceans to cross. I'm going to fly back to New York and then take a boat for England."

Other members of the crew are Capt. J. P. Saul, navigator; John W. Stannage, radio operator, and M. E Van Dyk, copilot.

Los Angeles, July 3 (A.P.).—The Superior Court today postponed to July 11 sentencing of Otto Sanhuber, attic man convicted of manslaughter for the death of Fred L. Oesterreich here eight years ago.

LUHRING CONFIRMED TO HIGH CITY COURT

Senate Approves Selection for Supreme Tribunal Without Debate.

APPEALS SEATS VACANT

The nomination of Oscar R. Luhring, of Indiana, to be an associate justice of the District Supreme Court was confirmed late last night just before the Senate adjourned.

Mr. Luhring and Joseph W. Cox were nominated by President Hoover to fill the two judgeships created by the Capper-Gibson bill. Mr. Cox was confirmed early in the week, but Mr. Luhring's nomination was held up at the suggestion of Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin. It was confirmed last night without debate.

President Hoover allowed the session to die without naming the two additional judges authorized for the District Court of Appeals. It is likely, however, that he will fill the vacancies by making recess appointments.

Adventist Doctor Back From China

Big Gain in Denomination's Hospitals in Far East Are Reported.

Recently elected to the presidency of the new China division conference of Seventh Day Adventists, with headquarters in Shanghai, Dr. H. W. Miller, formerly for seven years medical superintendent of the Washington Sanitarium, arrived yesterday at the institution in Takoma Park for a brief stay before returning to his augmented duties.

Dr. Miller left Takoma Park five years ago to begin his present work as medical director of the denomination throughout the Far East, where considerable progress has been made by Seventh Day Adventists.

"We formerly had seven institutions there, with a total value of $40,000,000," declared Dr. Miller in a statement yesterday. "Funds, workers and facilities have been forthcoming until now we have twelve institutions and sanitariums, which represent a value of $403,500,000 in the Far East. There are six nurses' training schools with 107 student nurses, 14 foriegn-trained physicians, with 2 more under appointment, 6 native physicians, 24 foreign-trained nurses and 24 graduate native nurses."

Firecracker Test Burns Capital Lad

Physician Is Called After Fireworks Explode on Trousers Seat.

Eleven-year-old Joseph Malick wanted a new Fourth of July sensation. He got it, a little prematurely, but none the less effectively, yesterday afternoon in front of his home at 1710 Hobart street northwest.

He had Billy Richardson, 12 years old, of 1612 Hobart street, tie a small firecracker to the seat of his own trousers and then light it for him. An explosion followed and Joseph jumped in glee, shouting, "Whee, it tickles!"

Then another and considerably larger firecracker was tied in the same spot. Joseph yelled, but in an altogether different key. A private physician gave him superficial treatment, but Joseph's trousers don't look the same any more.

Trio in Atlanta Indicted As Bribery Quiz Ends

Atlanta, Ga., July 3 (A.P.).—Alderman W. Guy Dobbs, of the Seventh ward; J. T. Ozburn, city councilman from the Seventh ward, and Harry York, former councilman from the Sixth ward, were indicated today for bribery as the Fulton County grand jury completed its two months' investigation of municipal graft.

York now is under sentence to serve three years on a Fulton County chain gang and to pay a fine of $4,000 as a result of his conviction on a municipal bribery charge several weeks ago. This is the first time Dobbs and Ozburn have been mentioned in grand jury indictments that already have named more than a score of city officials and citizens.

DEL RAY MAN FACES BAD-CHECK CHARGES

J. E. Lynch Is Held on Ten Counts After Alleged Deals With Jewelers.

DOWNTOWN STORES HIT

With a "batting average" of ten alleged successes out of twelve F street jewelers he visited, James E. Lynch, 30 years old, of Del Ray, Va., went one too many last night when he essayed a thirteenth jeweler and was picked up by Policeman H. E. Davis, of the First Precinct.

From that time on Lynch's troubles multiplied rapidly. He was questioned at the First Precinct Station House and then taken to headquarters, where he was closeted with Detective Sergt. Bernard W. Thompson for an hour. When he emerged from the conference he had ten charges definitely placed against him, with two in the immediate offing, and others in the distance.

Lynch, who only recently returned to civilian life after spending ten months in jail for bad checks, made a practice, police say, of preying on jewelry stores. He was accustomed to visit the store, pick out a watch, and pay for it with a worthless check, it is alleged. Once he had possession of the watch it was an easy task, police aver, to pawn it for about one-fifth of its retail price. Checks totaling $509.50 were in possession of police, and two others, totaling $75, were on file as having failed to "get by" merchants to whom they were tendered.

Storm Paralyzes New York Traffic

Heavy Rain Turns Streets Into Rushing Torrents; Tunnels Choked.

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—A terrific electrical storm approaching the proportions of a cloudburst tonight turned New York streets into rushing torrents, paralyzed traffic and played havoc with the plans of millions of persons hurrying out of the city for the holiday week-end. The Weather Bureau reported that .90 of an inch of rain fell in half an hour, more than half of it within ten minutes.

Water rushed into the Park avenue tunnels of the New York Central and New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroads, and no trains moved in or out of Grand Central Terminal from 8:08 to 8:45 o'clock. Other railroads also were affected, the city's great bridges were choked with vehicles, and traffic in the harbor came to a standstill while the storm lasted. The city cellars were flooded, including those of high-class hotels in midtown Manhattan. The storm slowed up the subway system for an hour.

Street car lines were put out of commission by water in the chanel rail slots. Scores of signs were blown down by a 40-mile wind. Many persons were slightly injured.

Youngstown, O., July 3 (A.P.).—The Rev. John Petrykanym, independent Catholic priest, was arrested here today by Assistant United States Attorney Marie Wolpaw, of Cleveland, charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law in New York.

Firecracker Explosion Kills Man; One Is Held

Pomona, Calif., July 3 (A.P.).—A firecracker was tossed into the automobile of Dudley P. Whitley, 55, today. He collapsed and died shortly after.

GOVERNOR WEIGHS MOONEY CLEMENCY

Young to Withhold Decision on Bombing Pardons Until Next Week, He Says.

30-PAGE OPINION GIVEN

San Francisco, Calif., July 3 (A.P.).—The 13-year-old question of liberty for Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings, trade-unionists serving the fourteenth year of life sentences in State prison for the 1916 Preparedness Day parade bombing in San Francisco, tonight rested with Gov. C. C. Young.

It was placed before him through a decision by the State Supreme Court here on an application by Billings for pardon. No hint of the contents of the 30-page judicial opinion was given, but the Governor said it would be made public as soon as a copy reaches the capitol.

"Most likely there will be no announcement on my decision until the first of next week," the governor said.

Ten persons were killed and 40 injured July 22, 1916, in an explosion during a Preparedness Day parade in San Francisco. Mooney and his wife, Billings and two others were arrested within a week. Billings was convicted three months later and sentenced to life imprisonment for second-degree murder. In February, 1917, Mooney was convicted of murder and sentenced to execution. The others were freed.

Labor agitation protesting the Mooney conviction extended to various parts of the world in the summer of 1917, culminating in a demonstration before the American Embassy in Russia. President Wilson then appointed a mediation commission, which reported Mooney did not have a fair trial, and the President urged Gov. Stephens to grant a retrial.

Mooney's conviction was upheld by the Supreme Court March 1, 1918, and in November the Governor, acting upon a presidential plea, commuted Mooney's death sentence to life imprisonment.

The Governor has made it known his action, based upon the supreme court decision in the Billings case, also would embrace the Mooney case.

REFUELERS DEMAND AID OF TOOL OUTFIT

that a law suit involving the City of Chicago and directed against them had been set for hearing next Tuesday.

"That would mean we would have to land Monday to get some sleep and bathe and shave," wrote Kenneth. "We want to stay up as long as we can."

Suggest Air Court.

So they suggested that Judge Michael Feinberg move his court to a 21-passenger plane next Tuesday and hear their testimony via two-way intercommunication radio. Judge Feinberg put their minds at ease with a message that court would wait until they landed.

Still another difficulty of the day had nothing to do with the success of the flight, but it left radio fans disappointed. It was the third failure of an Army radio plane to pick up a broadcast from the endurance fliers by dropping to them an extension microphone.

When the Army plane returned to the ground, officers charged their equipment had been tampered with. Their battery, they said, had been turned on during the night and had lost its charge.

Wires Tampered With.

The Army radio engineers on the ground then reported they found a wire had been cut and its loose ends concealed in a box. The result of the alleged tampering was that John and Kenneth talked into a "dead" microphone.

Their short wave broadcast was to be picked up and rebroadcast by the Columbia system. For this radio service they are receiving $1 a minute.

Crowds continued to pour into the airport today and the roads leading to it were clogged with automobiles. Newspaper men, photographers and newsreel grinders tonight were furnished tents by the airport. Last night they received beds from a Loop hotel and many of them slept under the starry skies with the drone of the endurance motor to lull them to sleep, if any.

The second radio broadcast late this afternoon also failed. This time the Army plane, its equipment repaired, failed to contact the endurance plane. The Hunter brothers refused to take the microphone when it was dropped.

Observers explained that in jockeying for position for the contact the endurance flyers probably became convinced they would not be able to adjust their speed to that of the Army plane.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

EARLY JULY IN THE GARDEN.

With the passing of the spring phase of your garden and its spectacular displays of color begins the dry season and the problems of summer care. Rapid growth of weeds and the necessity for frequent watering challenges you to continued effort just as your interest tends to lag. From March until the end of June your garden has presented a passing panorama. Tulips, daffodils, irises, peonies and roses have come and gone.

Now there is a pause in the affairs of the garden; there are no more brilliant displays of color, and because of this your ardor may cool. Of course, if you have planned carefully you will have hardy perennials and some annuals which even in July will prove of interest.

Pansies in July have a tendency to flower sparsely. Go over the plants each day and remove all dead or dying flowers. Such care will prevent the plants from developing seed and induce more blooms. Whenever it is possible, water your pansies in the middle of the day, as the leaves then dry quickly and the ground about the plants will be comparatively dry by night. If the plants go into the night wet they may develop mildew.

Overhead watering in the evening of roses and other varieties is likely to bring on mildew, if other conditions are favorable to its development. But while sprinkling in the evening is taboo for varieties that are prone to mildew, it is especially satisfactory for the grass. One well-known horticulturist tells us to make a habit of watering our perennial borders in the daytime and our lawns in the evening.

Do not forget that in July and August a mulch made by hoeing and raking conserves moisture and promotes aeration of the soil. If you were thoughtful enough to work well-decayed manure into your ground last fall or early this spring the soil should now be retentive of moisture. Sprinkling has a tendency to make the soil compact, which condition is not conducive to the growth of healthy plants. However, a soil that contains plenty of humus rarely bakes.

This is a good time to divide or set out more German irises. The bearded irises form creeping root stocks or rhizomes. Do not bury the rhizomes, merely cover with enough soil to hold in place with the upper surface exposed; the sunnier and drier the position the better. Use no manure, but give a generous application of bone meal and wood ashes and a dressing of lime. Old, well-established plants should only be divided once in four or five years.

(Copyright, 1930.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers, if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, July 3.

Now is the time to mention the importance of lace. We are more or less used to the idea of lace for informal evening gowns, and this season, incrusted as they are with filmy chiffon, they are softer and lovelier than ever.

But who would have expected a bundle of black lace to suddenly become a tailleur! Perhaps no one. But Ardanse, that incomparable couturier, has fashioned a delightful afternoon tailleur of black lace, with a short and rather cut-away jacket and flared skirt. For freshness and charm she puts in a draped white georgette vestee, as well as elbow ties with long flowing ends.

And one of the daintiest, most elegant pyjamas that has ever caught our eye or taken away our breath in all Paris is the lace pyjama created by this same couturiere. I couldn't possibly tell you where there's a gore and where there's a seam, or how it buttons—if it buttons at all—or even a single solitary technical detail about it. All I am aware of is its gracefulness, its elegance, its ravishing softness—and that it has a flower bouquet on the shoulder, and satin ribbon at the waist.

* * * *

S. O. S.! 'N if you don't answer me it's going to be S. O. C. K. from either the Wild Irish Printer, or maybe-e-e-e-e my de-e-e-lightful editor.

So woman to woman, now, you wouldn't let that happen to me, would you? 'N I just hafta have some ideas for leaflets, or it's just gonna happen. So won't you just write your idea of what kind of a leaflet you think you'd like me to make the next time you send a letter for 'n' illustrated leaflet?

* * * *

There seems to be quite a similarity between Bernard et Cie, tailleurs, and a smart similarity, to—until you stop and study them. And then you see that there actually isn't, excepting as they are cut on the accepted lines of chic that tailored wear demands.

And then invariably they depart in some way from what one expects of the tailleur, with a little this or that note, which gives them their individuality. As, for instance, the red, blue and white mixture suit I have illustrated for you today has a blue tussor blouse, while the brown lightweight woolen on the right, with its smart cut and lapeled collar, also sports a blue blouse. And you just know that everybody in the world isn't going to walk down the street wearing a tailleur and a blue blouse!

* * * *

Just the right brassiere for you, one that gives you the fashionable figure of feminine curves. It's so much more important than ever with the new mode, to wear the correct brassiere, that I've rewritten a leaflet of directions for making several varieties of them, just in case you didn't have the previous leaflet. Knowing that one type would suit you, and also that you will be interested in the brassiere for evening wear that has garters. So send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the directions telling you how to make one of tulle, one of ribbon, or a crocheted model.

* * * *

Of course, you're looking each Sunday for Dare's weekly fashion letter in The Sunday Post.

The Tale of the Goofus Fly

A Goofus Fly was toasted once
With words that sounded fine:
"Drink to me only with thine eyes
And I will pledge with mine."
The Fly has a thousand eyes,
Her companion but one;
So on her eyes he got cockeyed—
A sort of visual bun!

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

If July 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 5 a. m. to 7 a. m., 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 10:30 a. m. to noon and 6 p. m. to 7:15 p. m.

The echo of your efforts on this date will not resound quickly, and you must not be impatient for results. Every honest seed of endeavor will bear fruit.

The children born on this July 4 will be faithful, sincere, firm, just and reliable. They will possess steady, quiet and practical natures. They will be able to find an outlet for their talents in many departments of life, according to circumstances.

The adaptability of your nature is your greatest asset, it is the leveling influence in your life. Success in life is largely a matter of adjustment, and when one can accommodate themselves to people and conditions, as you can, half the battle of living is won. You are sensible and level-headed, and when you find that you have made a mistake, you do not become hysterical, peeved or unreasonable, but you calmly figure the best way out. You never lose your nerve at the time of an emergency, although you are usually "all in" afterward.

You intuitively judge human nature very correctly. You do not often mistake a fascinating personality for a worthy one, charm of mind and manner for sterling qualities, or the enraptured attention of a lover for the lasting kindliness desirable in a husband or wife.

You do not need outside stimulation or "bucking up." You are able to move forward spontaneously. You have an orderly mind and are a logical thinker. You will not be largely influenced by other people, either through marriage, partnership or general association. You have humanitarian views and a desire to do good. Your motives are not always prompted by self-interests, or by the returns expected. Your abilities in connection with religion or law are especially marked.

Successful people born July 4:

Nathaniel Hawthorne, author.
Felix Angus, artist and journalist.
Joseph Pennell, artist and author.
Calvin Coolidge, former President of the United States.
Sophie Irene Loeb, social worker.
George Cohan, actor-manager.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

CURE OF BOW LEGS.

Mrs. M. H. writes:

1. How can bow legs be cured in a person 24 years old?

I am 24, 5 feet 4 inches tall and weigh 96 pounds. How much should I weigh?

REPLY.

1. By operation.

2. About 128 pounds. A bow-legged woman should weigh a little more than that. Height is not measured around the curves.

SMOKING INNOCENT.

Mrs. B. writes:

1. Does excessive smoking cause the pupils to dilate?

2. Cause reddish streaks in the eyes?

3. I am a woman of 22, and am very nervous and have little pep. Does smoking cause all this?

4. What would cause the pulse to change from 55 to 90?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. No.
3. Probably not.
4. Excessive smoking may be the cause.

PUFFINESS ABOUT EYES.

Mrs. L. A. P. writes: What is the cause of puffiness around the eyes and swelling of the feet and ankles? Some say heart disease, others kidney disease, and still others constipation.

REPLY.

The two most important causes are Bright's disease and heart disease. There are other causes, but constipation is not one of them. This condition was once known as dropsy in an early stage.

The cause should be discovered and made the basis of treatment.

"SYMPTOMS" OF CANCER.

S. M. G. writes:

1. What are the symptoms of cancer?

2. Does it start with a sore tongue?

REPLY.

1. There are no symptoms of cancer, as such. At least not at the start. The symptoms result from the location.

2. Cancer of the tongue may cause early soreness of that organ. Cancer elsewhere would not.

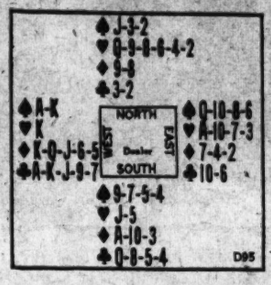
WORK ON BRIDGE



In the above deal, played recently in a Contract Bridge Tournament in Brooklyn, South passed and West bid two Clubs. He was using that declaration as an artificial bid to show that he wished East to keep the bidding open until West could make two real bids. North passed and East made the lowest possible overcall — two Diamonds. After South's pass, West bid three Diamonds, and East again made the lowest possible overcall—three Hearts. Then West bid four Clubs and East four No Trumps to show that he had the two majors completely controlled and considered that ten tricks was more probable at No Trumps than eleven at either minor. West, his confidence enhanced by his unannounced strength in the majors, then felt justified in bidding four Spades; as he had already shown two suits, this bid must be an "Aceshower." East bid five Hearts and West ended the much more sensational than sound slam bidding with a call of six No Trumps.

Had the deal been played in Auction Bridge, West would have bid one Diamond, East one No Trump, West two Clubs, and East two No Trumps.

With East the Declarer, South led a Spade which West won. West then led the King of Diamonds, South won and led a second Spade, after which West ran four Diamonds, North discarding three Hearts, East two Hearts, and South a Heart and a Spade. Needing all the remaining tricks to make his slam contract, Declarer's play to trick 8 was his Ace of Clubs which did not produce for him any indication of the location of the adverse Queen.

When leading to trick 9, West held King-Jack and two other Clubs, no Spades and the singleton King of Hearts; East held the Ace and Ten of Hearts, the Queen and Ten of Spades, and one Club; everybody's Diamonds were exhausted. This was a rather embarrassing position for Declarer who had to take every trick to make his contract. Dummy might drop the Queen of Clubs by leading the King, but South's Spade discard ensured East's ability to take two Spade tricks; So Declarer led the King of Hearts from dummy (West) to trick 9, overtaking with East's Ace. Two Spades were cashed by East and a Club led for the finesse which would win the small slam if it succeeded. Of course if the finesse should lose, the play might cost a trick; but it seemed to be the best chance to make the contract.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

And She Is 15.

Dear Miss McDonald: Here is my trouble. I have met a boy whom I care for very much. I think he likes me, too. I have his pins and I am sure he cares for me—that is, as sure as any girl can be of a boy's feelings.

This boy comes to see me on the average of once a week as we are in school and we both have to study. When he comes he kisses (&c.) a good deal. Is this all right? You see, I do like him and I do "neck" with him and the thing I'm afraid of is that he'll lose respect for me eventually. I never let him go too far with it and he doesn't try to—but should I let him kiss me so much? I never know just how much to let him kiss me as I don't want to be too cold nor too easy.

He is just 18 and I am 15, and I want to start right, so I'll know how to handle my affairs as far as "necking" goes, anyhow. FIFTEEN.

For two years I have been trying might and main to get the mothers of this enlightened land to consider whether or not they want this sort of "experience" for their boys and girls, or whether they want professional instruction on this subject in the schools, as part of a girl's education.

At the present moment the only source of information or light on this subject open to a girl is the newspaper column. She can write to the paper. And she does. But that is usually after the boy has discarded her as having nothing further to offer in the way of excitement. At that state she usually asks, "What can I do to get him back? I would do anything." And she would. And the nervous conditions, the morbidity, the distaste for study, that result from such an emotional catastrophe for a 15-year-old girl follow her through life. She becomes the neurotic—who suffers one emotional upheaval after another. If she marries she is insanely jealous, dreads losing her husband's love. Why? Because she lost the first "love"—which was not love at all.

Physicians and psychologists could tell astonishing things regarding the effects of experiences in childhood. Why do we not listen to them. Why do we who know continue so heartlessly to expose children to such cruel calamity?

The schools are where girls and boys learn to exploit each other; why not let those schools teach them how to respect and inspire each other?

It is one of the crimes of our ignorance and neglect that our high schools do not provide a regular course of instruction by eminent authorities on the subject of all subjects to the adolescent mind.

Meanwhile a little 15-year-old girl of good family can write to a newspaper asking how much kissing, "&c.," she may grant a schoolmate. The sheer reproach to us of that callous "&c.," "&c." And of this girl some day some man will expect tenderness and the normal emotional responses of womanhood.

If you are a mother you will answer this one question:

"Do you believe a girl should learn as part of her education and preparation for life just why she should not permit herself to become the temporary property of casual male acquaintances, and just why men unfailingly pity or despise the girl who is at the mercy of any man she meets?

Send your answer to this column.

If you are against such education state your reasons. If you believe the schools should supply such education, state your reasons.

Show some interest in the welfare of the helpless boys and girls who are on the earth because you gave them birth.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

HANGING AND DRYING.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Dry the clothes outdoors, if possible. Sunlight is an excellent bleach. If the clothes line has been left out, wipe it carefully with a damp cloth before using. A cloth moistened with kerosene is excellent to remove soot and dirt, but the remaining traces of the oil should be removed with a dry cloth to prevent stains. Clothes pins must be perfectly clean.

Hang garments on the straight of the goods and by their bands where possible. Sheets and other large pieces should be placed from fourth to a half over the line and fastened securely in three or four places. Group similar garments together. Removing the clothes from the line in a systematic manner and folding the straight pieces before placing them in the basket will save time later, especially if some are to be put away unironed.

TEACHER GROUP HITS TOBACCO PUBLICITY

National Association Hears Plea for Instructive Air Programs.

GEORGIAN HEADS GROUP

Columbus, Ohio, July 3 (A.P.).—The National Education Association today voiced disapproval of tobacco advertising and any arrangement of radio broadcasting channels that does not provide education and government with a reasonable share of time on the air.

This action was taken in adoption of a committee report on resolutions. The resolution pertaining to tobacco advertising was approved in the face of strong opposition and by a vote so close that a count of the delegates had to be taken. It read:

"The National Education Association urges all teachers to emphasize the evil effects of alcoholic drinks, tobacco and other narcotics. The association condemns fraudulent advertising of certain manufacturers in their efforts to foster cigarette smoking. It commends for use in the schools selected periodicals which do not carry tobacco advertising."

Georgian New President.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools at Atlanta, Ga., was elected president of the association tonight. The only other candidate was Joseph Rosier, president of the Fairmont State Normal School at Fairmont, W. Va. Out of 1,052 votes cast, Mr. Sutton received 604 and Mr. Rosier 448.

Balloting was conducted during the day and a count by the voting committee revealed that delegates from the Southern States voted solidly for Mr. Sutton. Votes also were cast for eleven vice presidential vacancies, but results were not expected to be announced before tomorrow.

Mr. Sutton will be inaugurated at the final session of the annual convention, to be held at Ohio Stadium tomorrow. The office will be turned over to him by Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle, Lincoln, Nebr., retiring president, who automatically becomes first vice president.

The radio resolution placed the association on record as favoring enactment of legislation which will "safeguard for uses of education and government a reasonable share of radio broadcasting channels of the United States."

Radio Commissioner Heard.

While the representative assembly was approving this report, Ira E. Robinson, member of the Federal Radio Commission, appeared before a general session and called upon educators to "strike down an impending monopoly of the air by commercial interests." Radio, he said, is public property but can become the tool of evil as much as it can be made a great power for good. Which trend it takes depends upon the extent to which broadcasters keep the air responsive to the demands of high American ideals, he said.

Mr. Robinson did not name the group he claimed is forming a monopoly but declared its "power and influence is so subtle and effective as to portend the greatest danger to the fundamentals of American Republican Government."

The annual plea of the N. E. A. that a Federal department of education be established, with a Secretary in the President's Cabinet, was renewed in a resolution on education and the Federal Government.

Commercial use of child labor was condemned as economically unsound; recommendation was made that Congress prohibit the transportation of obscene literature in interstate commerce the same as in the mails; universal enactment of teachers tenure bills and retirement system legislation was urged; Congress was called upon to provide financial aid to the States in meeting a serious educational emergency in rural areas.

Will of Admiral Filed for Probate

Uriah R. Harris Leavse Half of Estate for Use of Brother.

Rear Admiral Uriah Rose Harris, U. S. N., retired, who died June 20, left half of his residuary estate in trust for the life benefit of a brother, William J. Harris, according to the will filed yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court. No value of the estate is given. The other half of the residuary estate is to be distributed among the children of William J. Harris and another brother, Thomas S. Harris.

Admiral Harris provided that upon the death of William J. Harris the trust fund held for him is to be dissolved and distributed among the nieces of the testator. The Union Trust Co. is named executor.

Admiral Harris also provided that jewelry and certain personal effects are to go to William J. Harris. Household effects and $9,000 were left to Alice E. Simonton "in appreciation of her care and attention to me and of my love and affection." Pauline A. Harris, a niece, was bequeathed $3,000, while Alma E. Harris, another niece, was left $2,000.

prison wall prodded the mattresses and approved the load. The door was opened and out went Levy.

But Victor Brown, keeper and truck driver, knows a well-made mattress when he sees one. He looked back at his cargo and saw that one mattress didn't seem to settle like the rest in that bundle. He stopped in front of the warden's home to say it looked to him like an inferior piece of work.

The principal keeper agreed. He had the mattress taken out of the bundle. It seemed inordinately heavy. He ripped it open. There was Levy, all fuzz and feathers.

Levy was doing 25 years for robbery and would have been eligible for parole in 1950. But not now. He gets an additional sentence for trying to escape, and will get another for having that hammer. All in all it'll come to about two years more.

SWANSON WILL HEAD NAVAL PACT SESSION

President Will Call Special Meeting of Senate on Monday.

LACK OF QUORUM LOOMS

he has made it clear that he would not relish assuming active or aggressive leadership.

Senator Reed is well equipped to explain the treaty and will doubtless do so later, but the senator has been criticized for his persistent efforts to assume the double role of judge and special advocate, and defense of the pact inevitably puts Mr. Reed in the position of indorsing his own work as negotiator. The same applies to Senator Robinson, of Arkansas.

Quorum in Doubt.

Senators Allen and Vandenberg have been suggested as logical leaders in view of the fact that they have taken the reins of leadership in the treaty fight after some expressed dissatisfaction with the more deliberate methods of Senators Borah and Watson. But Senator Allen is not a member of the foreign relations committee and will be in a position to understand the treaty better after the debate has elucidated the terms of the pact. Senator Vandenberg is a member of the foreign relations committee but may be in a position to render better service by guiding the treaty forces than by an early presentation of his views.

Mr. Swanson's speech may not be delivered on the opening day of the special session, as the senator will probably not speak unless a quorum is present. Indications are that there will be enough senators present to make a quorum, though the margin may be narrow. There were further indications yesterday that the delay in winding up the regular session has jeopardized the chances of keeping a quorum for more than a few days.

Senators Leaving Capital.

The maximum number of senators expected to remain for the treaty fight is given as 51 or 52, including all the senators who will remain to oppose the treaty. This means that opponents of the pact will have to be present to permit the Senate to function. The absence of any three or four of these senators on any day would probably mean inability of the Senate to function on that day.

Senators friendly to the treaty admitted yesterday that the chance of forcing a vote before November was very doubtful because of the apparent lack of a quorum, especially after the first week of debate. New complications arose yesterday when several senators who had expected to remain and vote for the treaty, announced that they had been compelled to change their plans. In two instances, senators said they had been ordered by their doctors to leave Washington without delay and had been absolutely forbidden to continue their work here until they had thoroughly recuperated from the strain of the long grind. Several senators who have engaged passage to Europe have deferred departure until July 9, but expect to leave on that date.

Police Still Working On Death-Threat Case

While the police are inclined to regard as a joke the death-threat letter received Wednesday by the department, Detective Dennis Cullinane is still working on the case, in conjunction with postal authorities. The letter said that one Washington policeman would be dead before July 14, with a bullet in his back.

The only clew the police have is the date set, which is the French Independence, or Bastile, day. The letter was mailed Tuesday. It was written with a pen on good quality plain, white paper. Postage was not prepaid, and it cost the department two cents to get the threat.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, said yesterday he was not surprised at the action of a man with an identical name filing against him in the primary and he agreed it would lead to considerable confusion.

"I have heard of this plan," he commented. "I am not surprised.

"It is done for the purpose of deceiving the voters. It is not in good faith."

Colleagues of Senator Norris were indignant over the move. Senator Norris believed the confused situation would hinder him considerably.

900 HEAR HURLEY AT CITIZEN CAMP

288 ATTEND FORT MYER

Expressing the hope that there never will be another war, but stressing at the same time the need of building up a national defense, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley addressed more than 900 young men who have enlisted in the Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort Washington yesterday afternoon.

The Secretary of War's address and review of the young soldiers marked the opening of summe camps of the C. M. T. C. at Fot Hoyle, Md.; Fort Myer, Va., as well as at Fort Washington and other parts of the country. At Fort Hoyle nearly 250 young men from Washington, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia, took the oath of allegiance to the United States and became candidates for commissions as second lieutenants of Field Artillery of the Officers Reserve Corps. An address was made to the recruits by Brig. Gen. James B. Gowen, post commander and commanding officer of the First Field Artillery Brigade.

Into Fort Myer marched 288 citizen soldiers. Throughout the country a total of 37,000 students are to receive training during the summer. In the Third Corps area, which includes Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, a total of 9,125 students has been enrolled for training in face of the fact that facilities for such training are available to only 4,600, it was reported by those in charge of the camps.

At Fort Washington, as in the case of the other camps, the boys were mostly rookies, straight from schools, offices and farms. The detachment of 900 at Fort Washington was put through a strenuous three-hour drill yesterday morning in preparation for its debut before the Secretary of War, Gen. Krieger, in command of the post, Gen. Mosely and Maj. A. M. Patch.

The youths were given the oath of allegiance by Gen. Krieger, following an invocation from Chaplain Biggs. Prior to this, the Fort Washington regulars, including cavalry, artillery and infantry, gave a smart demonstration.

90 YEARS OF SERVICE

Professor Labat's Services Are Held

Many Embassy Aids Attend Rites for Teacher at Georgetown U.

Following requiem mass in Dahlgren Chapel yesterday morning, the body of Prof. Jean J. Labat, of Georgetown University, who died last Monday, was buried at Forestville, Md., on the estate of his father-in-law, Dr. William M. Stewart.

The Rev. Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of Georgetown University, officiated at the mass, which was attended by members of the French Embassy, on which Prof. Labat previously had served, and from a number of other embassies and legations as well as many members of Georgetown faculty. Assisting Father Nevils at the mass were the Rev. John A. Dixon, S. J., the Rev. Daniel J. McNally, S. J., and the Rev. Francis E. Lucey, S. J., members of the university faculty.

Eight former students of Prof. Labat at the school of foreign service, four of whom had given their blood for transfusion in attempts made to save his life, acted as pallbearers. Prof. Labat had undergone an operation for appendicitis about five weeks ago and died at Emergency Hospital. He was head of the modern language department at Georgetown, having been on the college and foreign service faculties for upward of eight years.

Housekeeper Asks $200,000 for Toil

Bertha Taylor Suit Against Estate Says J. W. Morris Promised Amount.

Alleging that her services as housekeeper were worth $200,000, Bertha S. Taylor, 3710 Ingomar street, has filed suit for this amount in District Supreme Court against the Washington Loan & Trust Co., executor of the estate of John W. Morris, who died May 18, 1929.

The plaintiff claims that Mr. Morris contracted to bequeath her one-third of his estate, in return for her services as housekeeper. In April, 1903, it was stated, a will was drawn to this effect. Without knowledge of the plaintiff, it is alleged, a second will was drawn in March, 1927, which contained no provision for the housekeeper, and this will was admitted to probate.

Attorneys W. E. Leahy, A. L. Newmyer and T. P. Regan represent the plaintiff.

The 75th Anniversary of Crane Co.

It was the 4th of July, 1855. In a modest frame structure at Canal and Fulton Streets, Chicago, R.T. Crane drew from the fire a crucible of molten brass and poured his first castings. Humble in origin, a business was born destined to greatness by the resolution of the founder, a creed of powerful simplicity:

"I am resolved to conduct my business in the strictest honesty and fairness; to avoid all deception and trickery; to deal fairly with both customers and competitors; to be liberal and just toward employees; and to put my whole mind on the business."

By this resolution, steadfastly adhered to, the little structure has expanded into factories that now cover 375 acres and into branches and sales offices in 196 cities of United States and foreign lands.

The shadow of the founder, R. T. Crane, has lengthened into a globe-girdling institution with more than 20,000 employees.

The first simple castings poured seventy-five years ago have grown into more than 33,000 Crane products that serve mankind throughout the world... They serve in city homes, humble as well as pretentious, freeing families from the evils of insanitation, from kitchen drudgery, from winter's chill... They serve in rural communities, releasing farmers and their wives from the discomforts and labor imposed by the lack of running water...

They serve in industry, answering every problem of valves and piping for carrying and controlling oil, gas, air, steam, and water.

The Crane creed has been the inspiration for this service. It has been the touchstone by which every subsequent Crane policy has been tested; the secret of the trust evoked among engineers, architects, contractors, and home owners, for every product that bears the Crane name.

Yet whatever progress has been made is accounted only a beginning of a greater growth, a deeper engineering research, a broader service to mankind.

THE DISTRICT BILL.

The long deadlock between the two houses of Congress on the District appropriation bill was broken yesterday by the agreement in conference to fix the Federal contribution at $9,500,000. This is a decided victory for the Senate, and a most gratifying assurance that the House clique will never again be permitted to dictate to the Senate upon this subject.

The United States should furnish one-half of the cost of the District government. An examination of all the factors in the situation will probably disclose that the 50-50 rule that obtained for many years is just to all parties. The Senate conferees are entitled to the thanks of the taxpayers of the District for refusing any longer to accept the $9,000,000 proposed by the House. There is hope now for a more just division of the burden of District government. The taxpayers can not hope for reimbursement of sums extorted from them by previous legislation, but they can at least look forward to a gradual assumption by the Government of its proper share of the cost of maintaining the District.

Instead of carrying this year's administration on last year's appropriations, the bill as passed provides for improvements and increases made necessary by the growth of Washington. Thus many employes who were threatened with dismissal will be made safe, and much-needed work will go forward. This outcome is the result of a determined attitude on the part of the Senate. The District of Columbia owes no thanks to the House clique which persisted in trying to rule or ruin the municipality. The smashing of this clique is the welcome forerunner of a genuine readjustment of the financial relations of the Federal and District governments.

OVERPRODUCTION OF WHEAT.

Brazil's coffee valorization scheme proved that the withholding of a staple crop from the market does not insure an increased price. The Brazilian scheme has been in effect between seven and eight years, during which time the impounded surplus of coffee has steadily increased. The expected "lean" years, in which the surpluses were to have been eased out into the markets, failed to materialize. The coffee warehouses are filled to such an extent that in the State of Sao Paulo the suggestion that 4,500,000 bags of stock and part of the crops of the next two years be destroyed in the interest of enhancing the price, is receiving serious consideration. The situation in Brazil is of interest in connection with the world wheat outlook report recently published by the Department of Agriculture.

The report shows that the trend of wheat acreage and production is toward expansion. The area sown in the Southwestern wheat States increased approximately 4,000,000 acres from 1924 to 1929, and during the same period the area in Canada, Australia and Argentina increased more than 10,000,000 acres. A threatening factor is Russia, where officials are introducing farm machinery and trying to improve crop methods. The Soviet hopes to reenter the export market within the next decade on a large scale.

Exportable surpluses are increasing in Canada, Argentina, Australia and the Balkans, but per capita consumption of wheat is not increasing, and world population is increasing at a retarded rate. In view of these facts, the department advises American farmers to reduce their acreage and work toward adjusting wheat production to the domestic demand. The farmer would be protected against foreign wheat by the tariff, which imposes a duty of 42 cents a bushel.

The Grain Stabilization Corporation, a creature of the Federal Farm Board, today holds millions of bushels of American wheat purchased and withdrawn from the market during the winter and spring in an effort to peg the price. It promises to retain this wheat until such time as it can be eased out into the market without seriously disturbing the price level. Brazil's experience with coffee indicates that the opportunity for easing out wheat probably will be slow in materializing. The fact that the stabilization corporation is hard pressed for storage space for the grain it now holds means that it will be physically difficult for it to gather in additional surpluses in future years. Moreover, the fact that prices have steadily slipped downward, despite the withdrawals, proves that the mere withdrawal of grain from the market does not tend to improve prices, and probably will be a discouraging factor so far as further attempts to peg prices by this method are concerned.

There is wisdom in the department's advice to farmers to curtail acreage so that wheat production will not exceed domestic consumption. The outside world is gradually increasing its production of wheat. If Americans produce an oversupply they can not expect to sell the surplus at a decent figure. The loss on this surplus will eat up the profit on the whole output.

CRIME COMMISSION GOES AHEAD.

The Senate vote to appropriate $250,000 for expenses of the Law Enforcement Commission is a victory for President Hoover. The Senate had previously voted to limit the commission to $50,000, with the provision that its study be limited to the question of prohibition. By an overwhelming vote the House approved the larger sum, and now that the Senate has fallen in line continuation of the crime probe is assured.

The Law Enforcement Commission was never intended to be a special agency to study prohibition. From the first President Hoover advocated an investigation of the whole field of law violation, prohibition being one phase of the larger problem. To have crippled the commission at this crucial stage when a good share of its work has been done would have been false economy of the most ridiculous sort. The results of the commission's incomplete research would have been lost. Under any circumstances this must be considered one of the most important investigations ever undertaken by the Government, and it should be followed to its logical conclusion.

Now that the commission is assured of a new lease on life it should be allowed to pursue its studies without interruption. It was understood at the time this research was begun that it would require considerable time, as it calls for a thorough survey of the underlying factors of American conditions. The commission doubtless will push its work forward as rapidly as possible.

THE ANTHRACITE CRISIS.

The anthracite wage conference, which has been meeting in New York, will resume deliberations Monday. It was anticipated prior to the convening of the conference that new contracts would be worked out without difficulty, the operators agreeing to an extension of the prevailing wage scales, and the workers, in consideration of not being asked to accept scale reductions, agreeing to certain minor modifications of working rules. But labor has demanded that work in the hard coal fields be divided equally among the men who might be employed in good times, and that the current practice of shutting down the least profitable mines in slack times be abandoned. Operators hold that the granting of this demand would further increase their costs and react against any possibility of reducing prices.

What was expected to be a harmonious, friendly meeting threatens to develop into an extended controversy. If the way to an early agreement can not be discovered it will be a great pity, not only because difficulties in the coal fields are invariably attended with misery but also because the anthracite industry has its back to the wall, fighting high production costs and the inroads of competitive fuels. The industry is not in a position to survive an extended labor controversy.

The anthracite industry, following the general trend, has gone in for mechanization on an extensive scale, with the result that by 1935 it is estimated that a mere 100,000 men will be able to supply the demand for hard coal. In the great strike of 1925, 154,000 men walked out of the mines. Gradually, but steadily, the number of jobs in the industry is being reduced and the number of working days is being lessened. Meanwhile, the operators are working on narrower margins of profit, and it may reasonably be doubted that the industry could survive if it were compelled to extract part of its output from the least profitable shafts.

Hydroelectric power is waiting avidly to reach in where anthracite has previously supplied energy to make the wheels of industry revolve. Fuel oil is ever anxious to replace coal. If a protracted dispute is allowed to develop in the hard coal fields, thereby curtailing production and skyrocketing prices, industry will turn to electricity and oil for its power, and when the dispute is adjusted it will be found that the demand for anthracite will have been permanently diminished as a result of substitution.

The anthracite wage conference is called upon to meet a crisis of far-reaching seriousness. Both sides should consider the fact that the decisions they make and the concessions they agree upon are of more than immediate importance.

LEANING ON UNCLE SAM.

Encroachment by the Federal Government upon the rights and functions of the States brought vigorous protest from nearly all the speakers at the national conference of governors which has just closed at Salt Lake City. Gov. Trumbull, of Connecticut, denounced the Hawes-Cooper act, which would subject prison-made goods shipped into a State to the local restrictions imposed upon goods of that character. Gov. Christianson of Minnesota attacked the Federal-aid system under which the Government helps to finance State activities. Other governors joined in this chorus of criticism, but it resulted in nothing more than talk.

It is a well-known fact that the Government takes over many responsibilities that rightfully belong to the States. Resentment over this gradual loss of power is not sufficient, however, to prevent most States from handing over to the Government new obligations of a local nature. The desire to preserve "States' rights" is seldom strong enough to cause the refusal of Federal aid. On the whole, the States are willing to shift financial burdens to the Government on one hand and cry out against Federal encroachments on the other.

It must have taken a good deal of courage for Gov. Christianson to call for termination of the "fifty-fifty practice." Under this method of dividing expenses the States have acquired highways and have carried on vocational education, agricultural extension work, forest fire prevention and even maternity and infancy hygiene activities that otherwise would have been impossible. The States have come to depend upon the Government for improvements for which their own budgets do not provide. They have willingly leaned upon this crutch in spite of their resentment against it.

The cry against encroachment is meaningless as long as the States continue to resign their obligations to the Government and request further contributions from the Federal Treasury. The way to end usurpation of authority by the National Government is to remove the cause for Federal participation in local affairs. Let the States raise their own funds for highways, fire fighting, &c. Let State agencies remove the abuses which cause Congress to proffer its financial aid. When the States become self-reliant they need have little fear that the Government will reach out its hand to meddle in their local affairs. The governors ought to turn their criticism upon themselves and the legislatures for putting the States in a position where they are not able to stand upon their own feet.

Representative Boylan thinks that the Congressional Record would interest more people if it were to print cartoons. What the Congressional Record needs is not more comics, but a smattering of solid information.

Cal Coolidge advises everybody to loosen up and spend money. It was not thus when he was president of the Woodpeckers' Club.

But how can Reed Smoot be paired on the treaty, when he has just been paired at Salt Lake City?

FRANCO-ITALIAN DISPUTES

Paris Correspondence of the London Times.

The differences between France and Italy on the subject of North African expansion have their roots deep in the history of the newer colonizing movement. It is a mistake to consider the Italian forward policy in Africa as a by-product of Fascism. Italian discontent was aroused when the French, 40 years ago, went into Tunisia with the consent of Bismarck, and Italy's war-like penetration of Tripolitania can be traced to the policy of Giolitti. The dispute as to the status of Italians in Tunisia really dates from the Italo-Tunisian Treaty of 1868. In 1896 the French forced the Bey to denounce this treaty and an analogous treaty with Great Britain. In our own case no difficulty arose, since nearly all the British subjects in Tunisia were Maltese, and all that was asked was that they should have the right of maintaining their British citizenship. It is otherwise with the Italians, of whom there were, according to the census of 1926, some 90,000 in Tunisia. They derive their rights from the convention drawn up in 1896, which is liable to be denounced every three months—a precarious position indeed, especially in view of the French laws regulating questions of naturalization.

This law applies to all Europeans except Italians. But it is clear to any one familiar with the principles underlying the French conception of nationality that the administration must look askance at so large and influential an Italian colony, and must offer to individual Italians every inducement to adopt French citizenship. On the other hand, Italy, especially since the advent of Fascism, has consistently sought to retain her nationals settled abroad, in Tunisia or elsewhere, to regard them as irridenta and the bartering of their rights against territorial concessions in the light of a betrayal. Thus the suspicion is engendered on the French side that the Italian element designs to create an Italian "state within the state," by using its concessions under the 1896 convention to increase the number of Italian schools and institutions, with a view to future action.

The question of the Tripolitan frontier, though less vital than that of Tunisia, is considered by Italy to be of great importance. It also has its roots in old treaties, but the real dispute begins with the treaty of London of 1915. Under Article 13 of this treaty Italy claimed the rectification of the western frontier in a way that would afford access to Tibesti and Lake Chad. In 1919 a certain rectification was made, which, in the view of the French, not only fulfilled France's pledge under the treaty of London, but also completely and definitively determined the African situation of Italy so far as France was concerned. Italy rejected this view as being, in the words of Signor Tittoni, only a partial and limited application of Article 13. Signor Mussolini has since adopted the same view.

The territories in dispute have little intrinsic value, but they are traversed by caravan routes which link up the interior with the Mediterranean. From the administrative and strategical point of view it is maintained that the Italian troops can only hold Fezzan if they hold also the oases of Tibesti and Borku, and that the control of Fezzan is essential to their undisturbed occupation and development of the strip along the sea coast. The claim as originally put forward involved assigning to Italy some 400,000 square kilometers, for the most part mere desert. The French view is that to agree to this would be to jeopardize their own communications with Lake Chad, and they have never admitted that Italy had any right to the hinterland south of Tummo.

In any case it is clear that the Italian claim to the territory as far south as Lake Chad was a maximum demand, from which the Italian negotiators had already receded in the recent conversations. It had, in fact, been indicated in the Italian press that Italy's requirements could be met with the assignment of some 60,000 square kilometers, provided a settlement on other points favorable to Italy were obtained. At this point, however, the negotiations seem to have collapsed, and Signor Mussolini embarked on the campaign of speech-making which so astonished France.

JULY THE FOURTH.

In those gay nineties pictured now as dull and commonplace,
When women rode on bicycles and scorned a painted face;
When what was proper seemed to be a fetish with us all,
Although I was a youngster then,
some "thrills" I can recall.
We had our celebrations, East and West, South and North,
The kids got up at 4 a. m. to start the glorious Fourth.

We'd planned that day for weeks and weeks. Black powder long we stored
To load a rusty cannon which was nailed upon a board.
The giant cracker held full sway, and strangely now I muse
The deadlier the firework was, the shorter was its fuse.
We shattered sleep and eyes and arms and many a window pane
Until reformers came along and made us safe and sane.

And those were lucky who escaped
the glories of the day,
Who did not lose an arm or hand or blow an eye away.
For many a sturdy youngster who had lit a cracker stout Risked life and limb by picking up the thing he thought gone out.
In freedom's name were cannons fired and pistols widely aimed,
And full a week it took to count the Nation's dead and maimed.

Those good old-fashioned days have gone. Perhaps 'tis better so, Perhaps 'tis better beards are things which men no longer grow, Perhaps these modern "thrills" they boast are truly safe and sane,
But fight with folly as you will, still folly will remain.
And thinking of my boyhood days, as comes the Fourth again,
I'll say that it was fun to be a healthy youngster then.

Righteousness Is Just Another Form of Common Sense.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

BILL SMITH had common sense and was proud of it. He was hard to fool. He kept a civil tongue in his head, but he despised mankind's sheep-like tendency to follow a leader without stopping to think.

"Now me," said Bill, "I'm independent. I do my own thinking. And I've made up my mind to pay no attention to the standards of morality and the rules of conduct wished on mankind by its leaders. The way I see it, most of these standards and rules were devised by the big fellows to keep the little fellows quiet. The smart boys simply used the ignorance and superstition of the herd as a means of keeping it humble and easily managed. They invented hell to scare the folks and make 'em mind the boss and pay taxes without grumbling. But they don't trick me that way. I'm going to discard religion and morality and have no guide in my life except common sense."

Bill kept his word. He didn't tell anybody, for he abominated argument; but he paid no attention to orthodox standards and relied on common sense alone to direct his life and dictate his conduct.

Once he was tempted to steal. "No," said he; "I'd like to have that car, but the other fellow worked and earned it and I've got no right to it. That's common sense."

Once he was tempted to shoot a man who had done him a mean trick. "No," said he; "the fellow's wife and children would suffer, and they've done me no wrong. What's more, the fellow's blood and training made him mean; his ancestors were at fault and I can't punish them. And if all of us killed those who wrong us, the race would die out. It just can't be done; it's not common sense."

That's the way he reasoned everything; and he went through life despising people who preached standards of morality, and scorning the doctrine that righteousness is essential to the world's salvation.

But common sense bound him hard and fast, so that he couldn't steal or kill or lie or cheat; it kept him temperate in all things, and made him tolerant and charitable and prompted him to support all things that tended to make the world a more pleasant habitation.

He thought himself a complete cynic, but when he died the people erected a great monument and engraved on it the words: "Here lies Bill Smith, most righteous of men. Religion has lost its shining light and morality its best example."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Holiday Drivers Should Be on Guard Against Accidents Resulting From Traffic Congestion and Recklessness.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Today starts a three-day holiday for thousands of Washingtonians, and hundreds of them will spend their leisure time on motor trips to nearby places. Every motorist should be particularly careful in order to prevent serious accidents. Decoration Day occurred on Friday, and this also permitted thousands of persons in Washington to have a period of three days of leave. When the papers came out Monday, June 3, there were accounts of the deaths and injuries of many persons who met with accidents while motoring.

The Fourth of July will be celebrated by fireworks demonstrations which often result in serious accidents unless strict care is taken while setting off the fireworks. Besides the dangers from fireworks, there will be the dangers of congested traffic on many of the roads leading out of the city on the Fourth of July, and incoming traffic will be endangered by congestion during Sunday, July 6.

The best way to avoid accidents is to use good common sense at all times when driving.

Congress Should Have an Understanding Insuring Naval Construction Before Treaty Is Ratified.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senators should obtain a guarantee from the administration that it will build the Navy up to treaty standard before they vote for the London naval treaty. The danger in ratifying the treaty without this guarantee is that pacifist influence in and out of Congress will prevent the enactment of bills providing for necessary increases of the Navy.

After the treaty has been ratified there will be a tremendous organized opposition to naval construction, on the ground that the treaty calls for reduction and limitation. Unless a thorough understanding can be had beforehand in the House and Senate looking to necessary naval construction the treaty should not be ratified.

The maintenance of naval defense is more important than the questionable increase of good will resulting from ratification of the treaty. If the Navy or the treaty must be sacrificed, let it be the treaty.

Golden Rule Would Be Sufficient for Motorists If They Would Observe It.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Would not the streets and highways be safer if each automobile driver always did just what he thinks every other driver ought to do in the matter of traffic laws and common-sense observance of the rights of others?

The writer suggests the following as a national slogan: "The rule of the road is the Golden Rule."

Undoubtedly good results would follow the use of such a slogan, displayed in any proper way or place—in newspapers or magazines, on billboards, on placards or pasters attached to cars, etc.

How many of the thirty thousand lives lost last year in automobile accidents might have been saved if all drivers had observed the Golden Rule?

SAFETY.

Suggests That United States Should Wait for Japan and Great Britain to Ratify Naval Treaty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I hope the Senate will hold off on the naval treaty until Great Britain and Japan have acted. Every effort is being made to induce the United States to ratify first. Both Japan and Great Britain are postponing ratification. Nothing is to be gained by jumping into this network first. Let us wait and see how the situation develops abroad during the next six months. It may be that we would regret hasty ratification of the treaty. Let us not tie our hands while foreign powers keep their hands free.

Buchanan's Presentation of Case Against Secession Described as Masterful.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent dedication of the memorial to James Buchanan affords the occasion to bring to surface the neglected fact that Buchanan's message to Congress in December, 1860, after the election of Lincoln, contained the most wonderful presentation of the legal and constitutional case against seccession that is to be found in the literature of that greatly controverted question.

SAMUEL RUSSELL.

"SHAMROCK V."

Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth—and England's fourteenth—challenger for the America cup is Shamrock V, says the London Morning Post. The struggle to regain this trophy, won by the schooner America for a race round the Isle of Wight seventy-nine years ago, has become an epic of courage and tenacity against almost insuperable odds, since the terms of the original challenge have always embarrassed the challengers. But there is a distinct chance that Sir Thomas Lipton's indefatigable persistence will now be rewarded, for last season the New York Yacht Club decided that all vessels built by the defenders must be constructed in accordance with Lloyd's rules. This eliminates the possibility of the British challenger, which has perforce to cross the Atlantic, having to compete with a freak yacht modeled exclusively for racing. The Americans, it is true, have still taken advantage of one of the original clauses of the deed of gift, permitting them to leave the choice of their defender until just before the race, and they have built four vessels from which to chose the likeliest foe to beat Shamrock V. But our gallant Sir Thomas has been well served in the designer of the new Shamrock, Mr. Charles Nicholson, while Capt. Ned Heard, the vessel's skipper, has little to learn from the American professionals. Everyone, not excepting his opponents, must agree that Sir Thomas Lipton, whose tenacity and sportsmanship have won universal admiration, thoroughly deserves to realize his life's ambition.

Holiday Lures Officials Off For Week-End

Three-Day Closing Gives Opportunity to Drop Duties Here.

By JEAN ELIOT.

WITH the Government departments closed for a three-day period and President Hoover looking forward to happy hours of fishing on the Rapidan, many of the Cabinet group are preparing to pass the Fourth of July holiday out of town. The Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur are also bound for the Rapidan, but for the "Cabinet camp" rather than the presidential camp. They have erected a little cabin on the site chosen by a trio of Cabinet members as a week-end retreat, which lies a mile or two above President Hoover's vacation lodge at the headwaters of the Rapidan.

Attorney General Mitchell and Mr. Arthur W. Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture, the two others who have cabins in this Cabinet cottage group, will be otherwise engaged over the Fourth of July holiday. Secretary Hyde left last night with Mr. Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, on an extended trip through the Western wheat country. THE GIRL IN THE AIR

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Janet Decker—Eighteen, with closely cropped head of burnt gold and a pair of very large and quizzical eyes. The flying secretary for

Robert C. Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern Air Transportation Co., and the father of Dick Tolbert, a young man, who is an official of Great Eastern, and who has told Janet he loves her and intends to marry her, even though he is at present engaged to Helen Morgan, a society girl, who has recently sailed for Europe with her mother, but who has just cabled that she is returning immediately.

Hugh Temple, pilot for Great Eastern and a friend of Janet's. He had mysteriously disappeared along with a huge shipment of money he was transporting by plane to a New York bank. This was not the first shipment that had been lost.

Henry Frenda, a clerk in the office of Great Eastern, and a friend of Janet's. He had lent a book on aviation to Janet, which had been entrusted to him by Belter, his boss, for delivery to a Mr. Crell, wealthy boarder at the Frenda home. Belter and Henry had a quarrel when Belter discovered the book had not been delivered.

Belter, office manager for Great Eastern and Henry's boss.

Miss Sears, Dick Tolbert's secretary.

Dick and Janet arrive at the field in the evening to find Belter slumped in his chair, dead. It apparently is a case of murder. Henry Frenda was one of the last persons to see him alive, and is suspected. Henry can not give a satisfactory explanation of his whereabouts that night.

Janet had received an anonymous note asking her to be at a certain spot at 11 o'clock that night. Armed with a revolver, which Dick Tolbert had given her for target practice, and which he had told her hadn't been loaded since he had bought it, she goes to the appointed spot. The figure of a man comes toward her in the darkness, with outstretched arms. She whips out the revolver, and orders the man to stop. There is a flash of flame, a voice calls, and she suddenly realizes she has shot Hugh Temple. She faints.

When she regains consciousness she is in Hugh's arms. He had dropped when she fired, but had not been hit. He tells her of his experiences after the robbery, and now he had been confined in a shack, and warns her that Three-Fingers, the criminal who had abducted him, is on her trail. He begs her to be cautious and make no friends at the office. He believes somebody at the office has been supplying the criminal element with information, and finally admits his suspicions of Belter. Janet tells him Belter has been murdered, that night.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XX.

Hugh had walked home with her after that. Preoccupied and silent, he had grunted occasionally in answer to her questions; but not until they had reached the porch did he seem to pull himself away from the thoughts that had held him since Janet had told him of Belter's death.

"It's no use to apologize for getting you out there tonight, Janet," he told her in a quiet voice. "I was insane to send you the note, and, if you'll forgive me, you were no less insane for not throwing it away and forgetting about it."

"What's the difference?" Janet asked. "It's worked out for the best, hasn't it?"

"That's what I was coming to. I was like an escaped convict until I met you there in the darkness, Janet. I made a mistake when I promised to stay under cover. Tolbert's like a baby when it comes to trouble. I've done his worrying for him for two years, and if he ever needed me, he needs me now."

Janet remembered what Tolbert had said about keeping his mind open to all possibilities. What would Hugh say if she told him Tolbert had considered him as a possible thief? But she had no intention of telling him. What he didn't know wouldn't hurt him.

"All of which," Hugh resumed, "leads to this: you've proved yourself more competent and more courageous than any four men I know. It's little enough to say, but I wanted you to know that you've been playing a highly important part in the affairs of the Great Eastern."

"Gosh, Hugh; you sound like a toastmaster getting ready to present a medal or something."

"And furthermore," Hugh went on heavily, slowly backing down the steps, "you're the most charming mite that ever breathed. . . ."

He had gone, then, leaving Janet leaning against the porch railing, too amazed to do more than call out a weak "Good night, Hugh."

How he had changed. There in the darkness of the old park, he had been the Hugh that she had known those first two days. But that parting speech. . . . What he had said hadn't mattered so much. It was his manner, his almost ponderous compliment. He hadn't been himself. It was as if he had been delivering a conviction so deep that he had lost control of himself.

". . . you're the most charming mite that ever breathed. . . ." How easily he might have said it, laughing, teasing. But he had not smiled and the words had come with apparent effort. "Surely——"

But she suddenly shook her head as if to clear her brain of an impossible thought, and hurried into the house.

It was after 8 when Janet heard her mother calling her next morning.

"Mr. Tolbert's come to take you to the field, Janet," Mrs. Decker announced, peeping through the door. "You be dressing and I'll bring your breakfast on a tray."

Janet nodded, smiling, and slipped out of bed. No doubt, the police had told Dick to have her there for questioning this morning. But even the prospect of a session with the law meant little as compared with the anticipated half hour with Dick.

But when at last she walked into the living room, hat and coat in her hand, it was not Dick, but Tolbert, senior, who waited for her.

"Oh, she said, confused. "I—why, how are you, Mr. Tolbert?"

She wondered why her mother had not explained that it was the elder Tolbert.

"I'm sorry, Miss Decker," Tolbert said gravely, "but we've been instructed to be at the field a little early this morning. You know what it's all about, of course."

"Of course," said Janet, suddenly hating the police and all that they represented. The ride to the field with Dick would have compensated for all that followed, but now. . . .

Tolbert was driving his own car, a beautiful black roadster Janet had never seen before. She wondered how many cars he owned.

"It's positively criminal to drag you into all this, Miss Decker," Tolbert told her as they slipped down West Side hill. "I told Dick last night that we ought to find some way to keep you out of it. But he had already told the police you were with him when he found Belter's body, and nothing would do, of course, but to bring you out this morning."

Janet said: "It's very kind of you to think of me, Mr. Tolbert; but I don't mind, really . . . Did they make any progress last night?"

"I'm afraid not. Young Frenda talked a good deal too much for his own good, but there's something more powerful, more sinister behind Belter's murder than an angry boy."

Janet looked at him sharply. "Angry?" she asked, innocently. "Was Henry Frenda angry?"

"Oh, not last night. He was really pathetic. But he admitted to the police that he and Belter had disagreed several times in the last few days. I believe he said they had almost come to blows yesterday afternoon, just an hour or two before Belter was killed."

Janet bit her lip. Henry's threat still rang in her ears. Had he made it good? Having quarreled with Belter, had he brought a revolver from his home and shot Belter while he sat at Tolbert's desk?

She heard Tolbert saying: "Let's talk of something more pleasant. . . . Do you like to drive?"

"A car, you mean? . . . I love it. But I've never driven much. Isn't this one new?"

"What you might call brand-new," Tolbert smiled. "My chauffeur's been breaking it in for a few days, but this is the first time I've had it. Not bad, is it?"

"It's lovely. But when one has so many, does a new one mean anything?"

Tolbert laughed. "It isn't the car that counts; it's what it can do for you. You see, when I use a car I must either go with a chauffeur or alone. There's no fun in that. I want company, pleasant, desirable company; some one to sit beside me and comment on the scenery, talk about the weather, anything but business."

"But Dick . . . doesn't he ever talk about anything but business?"

Tolbert could not conceal his amusement. "I'm afraid I haven't made myself clear," he said quietly. "I need companionship of a different order. Dick is very entertaining when he wants to be, but after all he's only another man."

"Oh," said Janet, and began to feel a little uneasy.

"I've lived alone a great deal, Miss Decker," Tolbert continued, "and sometimes I've been very lonely. Yes, very, very lonely . . . sometimes. Do you think a man my age ought to consider marriage again, Miss Decker?"

The question came so suddenly that Janet had no time to think of a circumspect reply. But it was like a plea for sympathy and she answered abruptly: "Of course you ought." And then: "If you fall in love, of course."

Tolbert said evenly: "I've fallen in love, Miss Decker; desperately in love. Unfortunately——" he held his eyes steadily on the road before them—"Unfortunately, the lady is much, much younger than I, and—well, it isn't enough for one to be in love. There must be two in love, mustn't there?"

Janet did not answer. But in her heart she was very, very sorry for this man of 50 who had everything the world could offer, save the one thing most wanted . . . and needed.

The detectives went about their business mechanically. Janet, Tolbert, Dick, Miss Sears and Henry Frenda sat in a half circle in Dick's office. The two detectives and a uniformed policeman sat opposite. The others had been questioned. Janet understood that she was only to corroborate what Dick had told them about finding the body. She answered each question slowly, carefully, anxious to give the exact truth, as she knew Dick had done.

"You are quite sure that Mr. Tolbert's office was locked when the younger Mr. Tolbert tried to get in?"

"Positive."

"And do I understand that you saw the light go on in Mr. Tolbert's office just a few moments before you came inside?"

"Yes."

"Now, how can you explain that, Miss Decker? The light goes on in a room where a man has been murdered. You immediately come inside and find the door locked. You get in, find the murdered man, the lights still on, but no one about who might have committed the murder or turned the lights on."

"Don't ask me to explain it," Janet replied. "But did Dick—I mean Mr. Tolbert—tell you that his office door was open and one of his windows partly up?"

The detective nodded. "But I understood you were not in the room when they found the open window and that they closed it before you came to the door several minutes later."

"That's right. I'm merely telling you what they told me. I was busy on the switchboard."

On and on; questions that had been put to Dick, Miss Sears, Henry, and always answered alike. And then, casually, without a break in the examination: "I believe you and Mr. Frenda have been friends for a long time, haven't you, Miss Decker?"

Janet turned to Henry, suspicious. What was he leading up to? Did he plan to trap her in some form of admission that Henry had threatened Belter?

"Yes," she answered slowly; "Henry and I have been friends for almost two years."

"I don't want to embarrass you, Miss Decker," the detective said gravely; "but you realize that I have a good reason for asking you such a question: Isn't it true that you and Mr. Frenda have been just a little more than friends, lovers, perhaps?"

Janet rose from her chair and glared at the man who sat waiting for her answer. "I've always heard," she said between her teeth, "that witnesses in court are treated with less consideration than prisoners; now I know it's true. Henry and I are friends. We've never been anything more; no one ever suspected that we were anything more. You didn't suspect it, but it's in your breed to be insulting. I've answered my last question for you, and that's that."

The room was suddenly as silent as a cathedral. They were all too startled to speak, so unexpected had been Janet's outburst. She heard Dick's voice saying: "I don't think you understand what he's getting at, Janet." And Tolbert, saying to the detective: "The child's rather upset by it all, and I'm inclined to think your question was rather vaguely put." And Miss Sears, to the world in general: "You'd think we were all suspected of the murder by the questions we're asked." And, finally, the sharp, authoritative voice of the detective, arrogant, angry: "I don't give a damn whether you people like my methods or not. I'm here to solve a murder and I'll do it my own way."

"You couldn't solve a junior crossword puzzle," Janet said quietly, her eyes never leaving his. "The louder the horn, the smaller the car."

The detective suggested an angry bull as he leaned far forward in his chair. "You're a hard little egg, aren't you, girlie? But don't forget you're getting tough with the law now, and it don't pay. I asked you a question, but you don't have to answer it if you don't want." His little eyes were black dots and his brows quivered almost imperceptibly. "I've got my case built up," he said slowly, impressively. "You've been leading this boy Frenda along, making him think there wasn't anybody else; but he came along and found you and Belter getting pretty thick; and, being a jealous sort, he just decided to put Belter out of the way. Oh, I'm not asking you to put your O. K. on that. I'm telling you. Sooner or later I'll have you on the stand and you can get hard with the judge if you feel that way about it. But in the meantime——" He got up and nodded to the two men behind him. "In the meantime, little girl, I'm going to put your boy friend where I'll be able to find him."

The policeman in uniform stepped forward, spoke to Henry and walked toward the door. Henry and the two detectives followed.

Without a word Janet dropped into Dick's chair, buried her face in her hands and began to sob.

FIVE NEW CARDINALS CREATED BY PONTIFF

Italians Now Have 31 and Non-Italians 32 Seats in Sacred College.

THREE TO STAY IN ROME

Vatican City, July 3 (A.P.).—The Sacred College, highest administrative body of the Catholic Church, whose supreme function is the election of a Pope when such vacancy occurs in the Holy See, today numbered 63 members, 7 less than its possible total, with the installation of 5 new "porporati," bearers of the purple, at a public consistory held today.

Three Italians and two from other lands were raised by his holiness, giving the Italians 31 seats and non-Italians 32, the closest the groups have been to each other in recent years.

The five, who this afternoon prostrated themselves before the pontiff, received their red hats and cardinals' rings and took the oath of fidelity to the Roman See, were Mgrs. Sebastiano Leme da Silveria Cintra, Archbishop of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Achille Lienart, Bishop of Lille, France; Rafaello Carlo Rossi, assessor of the consistorial congregation; Giulio Serafini, secretary to the congregation of the council, and Francesco Marchetti-Selvaggiani, secretary of the congregation for the propagation of the faith.

Three to Be of Curia.

The last-named three will be of the curia, administrators of the church's affairs. They will remain in Rome. The others will return to their dioceses.

Today's ceremonial was attended by the whole papal court, the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy See in their full regalia, many of the "black" Roman aristocracy, descendants of families that have served the Pope in the church, and by many others, including Brazilians and French. Many Canadians, here for the recent canonizations of the first North American martyrs, witnessed the ceremonies.

Monks of the mendicant orders led the papal procession, clad in black, brown or white robes, many with coarse rope girdles and sandals. Archbishops, bishops and patriarchs followed in rich raiment of various hues, wearing jeweled miters and bearing glittering croziers.

Old Cardinals Escorted.

Officers of the armed forces of the papal state, with burnished helmets and clanking swords, were next in the line, escorting the old cardinals two by two in their robes of richest purple, adorned with priceless lace, their flowing trains borne by pages. Each wore his pectoral cross begemmed and ermine-bordered.

Suddenly there burst forth a roar of applause which swelled into one long cry of "Long Live the Pope" Pius XI, borne shoulder-high upon the "Sedia Gestitoria," a portable throne of red damask, came into view. On either side of him waved ostrich plume fans attached to red velvet-in crusted staves. His holiness wore a mantle hemmed and embroidered gold over his white cassock and on his head rested a bishop's miter. His entrance to the Hall of Benedictines was a signal for the intoning by the Sistine Choir of the impressive "Tu Es Petrus" (Thou Art Peter), which greets the pontiff in every ceremonial. The silver trumpets of the Noble Guard sounded in march time.

New York Broker Leaps Ten Stories to Death

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—Guy B. Hurlbut, 56-year-old broker, jumped to his death from his tenth floor apartment on Riverside drive today, police attributing the suicide to stock market losses.

His widow said that Hurlbut had complained of the heat and last night went to his room early instead of taking his usual stroll along the Hudson. Early this morning he went to his bedroom window overlooking the river, climbed a stone ledge 3 feet high, an iron railing 2 feet above that, and jumped to the drive below.

Bank in Toledo Robbed With Loss of $13,500

Toledo, O., July 3 (A.P.).—Five robbers who entered a branch of the Ohio Savings Bank & Trust Co. here this afternoon held up the bank force. A check by the bank showed $13,500 was taken. The men escaped in an auto.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Question On Dividend.

S. F. B.—Have recent earnings of the following companies justified the expectation that present dividends will be continued: Alpha Portland Cement, Continental Diamond Fiber, Julius Kayser, Manhattan Shirt, National Cash Register and Philip Morris?

Answer—The new tariff is expected to aid the cement industry. Hence earnings of the Alpha Portland Cement Co. should benefit thereby, although building operations have shown some falling off. Road building, however, is holding up well. The low price for Continental Diamond Fibre might foreshadow some action on the dividend. Earnings for the March quarter equaled only 39 cents a capital share. This would be at the rate of $1.50 annually. On June 10 the annual dividend was reduced from $3 to $2 a share.

Julius Kayser not long ago reduced hosiery prices. Earnings for the current fiscal year are estimated at $3.75 per common share. The dividend has been cut from $4 to $2.50. Last year earnings of the common were $5.93. The dividend on National Cash Register is paid when earned. Income for the current year, therefore, must be $4 for the payment of dividend. Manhattan Shirt is somewhat speculative.

Earnings of the Philip Morris Co., Ltd., in each of the two fiscal years ended March 31, 1929 and 1928, were slightly in excess of the amount required for the annual dividend of $1 per share.

In the six months ended September 30, 1929, they were equal to 63 cents a share, an increase of 18 per cent over the net income of $223,237, or 54 cents a share, for the corresponding period of 1928. Earnings have increased in each of the last six years, with record earnings of $477,546 for each year ended March 31, 1929. In view of the rising scale of earnings, there appears every reason to believe at present that the company will continue to pay its current rate of dividend.

Mergenthaler.

M. J. S.—Kindly give me some information regarding Mergenthaler Linotype.

Answer—The company manufactures linotype machines and other printers' supplies. Net earnings for the year ended September 30 were equal to $8.71 a share as compared with $7.44 for the previous year. Since the 2-for-1 split-up in 1926 payments have averaged $6 a share.

The present rate is $6 and extras, the regular rate being increased from $5 to $6 last November. An extra of 25 cents a share was also declared at that time, while last September an extra payment of 50 cents a share was made. The outlook appears to be favorable.

Eastern Utilities Investment Corp.

T. B.—Kindly tell me the nature of the business of Eastern Utilities Investing Corporation and your opinion of the "A" stock.

Answer—This company derives its income from public utility investments; underwrites securities and acts as fiscal agent. The class "A" was offered by the Associated Gas & Electric, which controls the company, to holders of Associated Gas & Electric ten-year 5½ per cent investment certificates through rights to convert each $1,000 certificate into a unit consisting of three shares of cumulative prior preferred, two shares of $6 cumulative preferred, five shares of participating preference and five shares of class "A" common of this company. Eastern Utilities Investing "A" earned $2.28 a share last year. The stock looks attractive for the pull.

St. Paul and Others.

I. W.—I hold the following stock and will appreciate very much your opinion of them: St. Paul common, Continental Baking "A," Hahn Department Store, Pathe Exchange, Curtiss Wright and Gimbel Bros. Would you advise switching into cheaper stocks such as Montgomery Ward, R-K-O and Fox Film?

Answer—All of the stocks mentioned in your list are nondividend payers and are highly speculative. From your selection it would indicate that you are a speculator and not an investor. This column does not advise on switching operations. Montgomery Ward, paying $3, and Fox Film, paying $2, appear to be more attractive than your nondividend selection.

About Two Stocks.

I. J.—What is your opinion of North American Aviation and International Combustion?

Answer—International Combustion Engineering is now in receivership and the outlook is none too bright. It would be well to avoid a stock of this kind as an assessment may be levied on it. No dividends are paid and the stock is highly speculative. The near future of North American Aviation is none too bright also. This industry is still in its infancy, and as the stock pays no dividend it must be regarded as a pure speculation.

Davison Chemical.

L. T. E.—Do you consider Davison Chemical cheap at current quotations?

Answer—The writer does not give advice of this kind, but merely submits facts. Based on estimates of earnings for 1930 of $5 per share, as against $3.34 last year, the common would appear to be in line for dividends. This opinion is also based on the remarks of the president of Davison who has intimated early restoration of dividends.

The company is constantly expanding by acquiring profitable customers. In addition, its finances are in good condition and with the tariff expected to be of help, the outlook would appear to favor purchase of the stock for the pull.

JOHNSON SENDS MARBERRY, JONES AGAINST YANKS

COCHET AND BRUGNON DEFEAT TILDEN AND TIMMER IN 4 SETS

French Pair Triumph, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, At Wimbledon.

Meet Lott and Doeg; Finals of Women's Singles Today.

By FRANK H. KING.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 3 (A.P.).—The two strongest doubles teams in all Europe swept into the semifinal round of the British tennis championships today and tomorrow will clash with two powerful combinations of young American Davis Cup players for the right to enter the finals.

Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, of France, eliminated Bill Tilden and his Dutch partner, Hans Timmer, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3, in one quarter-final. In the other, Dr. J Colin Gregory and Ian G. Collins, Britain's best doubles pair, overcame a French team consisting of Jean Borotra and Christian Boussus in straight sets, 9—7, 6—3, 6—2.

America's surviving representatives in this phase of the tournament won their quarter-final matches on Tuesday.

In the semifinals tomorrow, Cochet and Brugnon will meet the United States champions, George Lott, jr., of Chicago, and John Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif., and Gregory and Collins will oppose John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., and Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., who beat them in the final here last year.

Mrs. Moody Plays Miss Ryan.

Another feature attraction will be the women's singles final between two Americans—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, the defending title holder, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan.

Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan, partners and favorites for the doubles title, reached the final in that division of play as well by defeating Madame Hemrotin and Mademoiselle Jeanne Sigart, Belgium, 6—2, 6—0, today. As a result the title match in singles was changed from Saturday to Friday in order to balance their playing schedule.

In an uphill battle against a strong English team consisting of Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall and Betty Nuthall, the young American combination of 17-year-old Sarah Palfrey, Boston, and Edith Cross, San Francisco, finally prevailed by scores of 4—6, 10—8, 6—3.

This victory carried Miss Palfrey and Miss Cross into the semifinals, where tomorrow they will encounter the Misses Feltham and Heeley, of Britain, for the right to meet Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan for the title.

Tilden Survives Only In Singles.

The redoubtable Miss Ryan, who still is claimed by the United States although she had lived for many years in England, also advanced in mixed doubles. She and her Australian partner, Jack Crawford, triumphed over Allison and Miss Cross in a quarter-final match, 6—2, 3—6, 6—3.

Bill Tilden now is a contender in singles alone as a result of his defeat in men's doubles today and the injury suffered by his mixed doubles partner, Franklin Cecille Aussem, yesterday which forced her to retire from the tournament. The American ace meets Wilmer Allison in the finals Saturday.

The mixed doubles semifinals, which will be played tomorrow along with those in men's doubles and the women's singles final, will find Crawford and Miss Ryan opposing Cochet and Mrs. Whittingstall in one match and the English team of Phyllis Mudford and Gordon Role-Rees playing the Germans, Fraulein Krahwinkel and Daniel Prenn in the other.

American Trackmen Winners in Germany

Duesseldorf, Germany, July 3 (A.P.).—America's touring track and field athletes carried off principal honors in their second appearance in Germany today. George Bullwinkle, of City College, New York; Pete Bowen, of the University of Pittsburgh; Steve Anderson, University of Washington, and Tommy Warne, of Northwestern, all won their specialties.

Bullwinkle won the 1,000-meter run in easy fashion in 2 minutes 30.8 seconds, with Lefeber, of Germany, second. Bowen, National Collegiate A. A. quarter-mile title holder, captured the 400-meter run in 49.2 seconds, with the German, Lanz, second, four-tenths of a second behind the Pittsburgh star.

Anderson, national hurdle title holder, won the 110-meter hurdles by a neck from the Swede, Sten Pettersson, in 14.9 seconds.

Warne won the pole vault, clearing 13 feet 1½ inches. Stechemesser, of Germany, was second with a vault of 11 feet 9¾ inches.

A German quartet beat a picked American four in the 400-meter relay by one-tenth of a second in 42.6 seconds. Hamm, of Georgia Tech, broad jump star, was injured in the Americans' first appearance in Germany at Cologne yesterday and did not compete today.

Heavyweights Sign For Bout on July 21

Louisville, July 3 (A.P.).—Paul Swiderski, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Al Friedman, of Boston, have signed contracts for a heavyweight bout here July 21 under the auspices of the American Legion. Announcement of the bout was made today and the contracts were delivered to the Kentucky State Athletic Board.

Stribling Will Sail For Europe Tomorrow

Atlanta, Ga., July 3 (A.P.).—W. L. "Young" Stribling, Macon, Ga., heavyweight boxer, left here today by train for New York, where he will sail Saturday with his father, Pa Stribling, on the Europa for England and a bout with Phil Scott on July 28.

Disagreement With C. U. Head Prompted McAuliffe to Resign

WORCESTER, Mass., July 3. John B. McAuliffe, of Worcester, whose resignation as director of athletics at Catholic University was accepted yesterday, said tonight that his resignation was a voluntary one, prompted because of differences in the question of athletic policies at C. U., which existed between him and the rector, Dr. James H. Ryan. His resignation was tendered June 30, he said.

Mr. McAuliffe made it plain that he was not at odds with officials of the Washington Institution. "It was an amicable situation," he said, "and I am entirely satisfied with arrangements attendant with my resignation." His contract had one more year to run.

Rector Ryon, it is understood, wanted to install a complete Notre Dame system of athletics at C. U., while Mr. McAuliffe desired to continue with his present policy. Mr. McAuliffe said last night that his plans for the future have not yet developed to a point where he could make any public announcement of them.

World Outboard Mark Of 47 Miles Claimed

Clearwater, Fla., July 3 (A.P.).—A world's record for outboard motor boats was claimed today by B. E. Lamb, Jacksonville.

Driving the wee wing and using a class C motor, Lamb made an average speed of 47.28 miles per hour in six heats of 1 mile each over a straight-away course. The previous record of 46.51 miles an hour is said to be held by H. Furgeson, of California.

The timing was done with an electrical device.

Tigers Defeat Reds In an Exhibition, 4-2

Detroit, July 3 (A.P.).—Detroit scored three runs in the seventh to defeat the Cincinnati Reds in an interleague exhibition game here today. A homer by Cuccinnello in the second accounted for one of the Reds' runs, both of which were scored in that inning.

The score:

H. R. H. May Witness Chicago Track Meet

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales may be an interested spectator at the British-American track and field meet at Soldier Field August 27.

U. S. OARSMEN AGAIN WIN AT HENLEY

Kent and Princeton Meet Today; Both Races Close.

HENLEY, England, July 3 (A.P.). Winning their second heats in the Thames challenge cup competition today by narrow margins, the eight-oared crews from Princeton and the Kent School, Kent, Conn., qualified to meet tomorrow in a Fourth of July bill that will decide which of the American combinations is to row in the semifinals Saturday.

The higly rated crew from the Club Canottiere, of Buenos Aires, was eliminated by a powerful Quintin Boat Club eight that won in the last few strokes. The South Americans led until the final quarter-mile but could not match Quintins home stretch spurt and lost by a quarter of a length.

Princeton's oarsmen, who averaged only 150 pounds to the man, defeated Clare College of Cambridge University by 6 feet in a close and exciting race, while Kent came from behind to beat the Lensbury Rowing Club by half a length. Princeton was clocked at 7 minutes 49 seconds for the course of 1 mile 550 yards, under slow rowing conditions. Kent's winning time was 7:54 and Quintin was clocked at 8:01.

Bow Man Collapses At End.

The Clare Eight was completely rowed out and the bow man in the English shell collapsed after crossing the line. All down the course the crews were rowing almost side by side with the result in doubt right up to the finish.

Kent's victory was won in the last quarter mile. After taking a slight

Schmeling Lands; To Consult Physician

Hamburg, Germany, July 3 (A.P.). Max Schmeling still is suffering recurring pains from the blow that ended his match with Jack Sharkey on a foul, the Teuton heavyweight told a representative of the Hamburger Fremdenblatt on his arrival from the United States at Cherbourg. Schmeling said he would consult a physician as soon as he arrived in Berlin.

Bobby Jones Moves West For National Open Test

By BRIAN BELL.

NEW YORK, July 3 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones today went away from the roar of Manhattan, with Father Knickerbocker's rousing welcome still ringing in his ears, headed for the comparative quiet of a golf course over which he will defend his open championship of the United States.

The world's most famous golfer entrained at 2 p. m. (E. S. T.) for Minneapolis, but his plans included a stop in Chicago tomorrow and Saturday. He will not see the Interlachen course venue of the 1930 championship, until Sunday.

Bobby was disturbed as he left New York. Although Pennsylvania Railroad officials, at his insistent request, held the Broadway Limited two minutes in a vain hope that Cyril J. H. Tolley, former British amateur champion, would put in an appearance, the train finally had to leave without him.

Tolley at Wrong Station.

As the Pennsylvania train pulled out, a dozen blocks away Tolley was waiting at the Grand Central Station, wondering why Bobby and his traveling companions failed to appear for the imminent departure of the Twentieth Century Limited.

Tolley will rejoin Jones in Chicago tomorrow morning.

"I must have misunderstood Bobby," said Tolley, ruefully, "but I was certain he said the Grand Central Station Oh well."

Jones was cheered on his way by a number of Atlanta friends and some dyed-in-the-wool New York golfers. He was in rare good humor.

He was asked to explain his awe-inspiring shot at St. Andrews when he holed out from a trap, 120 yards from the hole.

"Well," smiled the champion, "just after I hit the ball I was a little worried and while it was still in the air I thought for a second or so I had not figured the roll of the green quite properly, but when it stopped in the cup I saw my fears were unnecessary."

Golf Star Turns To Baseball.

He turned for a moment from golf to baseball. He is a vice president and member of the board of directors of the Atlanta Club of the Southern Association.

"The Crackers (Atlanta) have done well while I was away. When I left they were in last place and now they are fourth. That's progress."

"Did you do anything to help them up?"

And then there was another flash of Jones' kidding.

"Oh, yes, I cabled advice from time to time."

Cyril Tolley paused between inquiries about trains at the Grand Central Station long enough to suggest that Jones will win his fourth open title of the United States next week.

"Bobby did not play well in Britain—that is for Jones" he said, "but I am confident he will be Bobby himself again in the West and if he is, the championship is over before it starts."

BRAVES WIN AS SMITH STARS

Bucs, Held to 4 Hits, Blanked, 8 to 0; Cronin Shines.

PITTSBURGH, July 3 (A.P.).—Bob Smith, Boston right-hander, was in fine form today and his pitching enabled the Braves to take the final game from the Pirates, 8 to 0. Smith did not allow a hit until the sixth inning and then Pittsburgh found get only four singles, spread through four innings. Boston won the series, three to one.

The Braves combed Spencer and the added advantage of four Pittsburgh errors. They were off to a three-run lead in the first inning and finished the game with another burst of scoring in the last three frames.

The shutout was only the second administered to the Pirates this season. Cronin, Boston catcher, led the attack with three singles. Clark's Chagnon for thirteen hits and had double was the only extra base hit of the game.

Corbett Is Favorite; Fights Champ Tonight

San Francisco, July 3 (A.P.).—Although young Jack Thompson is welterweight champion of the world, Young Corbett, Fresno battler, has been made favorite in their ten-round nontitle bout here tomorrow.

Corbett already holds two victories over the Negro titleholder. This, combined with Thompson's mediocre showing in training, led fans to favor the Fresnoan.

Both boxers ended training yesterday.

Shamrock V Proves Class in Light Air

Gourock, Scotland, July 3 (A.P.).—Sir Thomas Lipton's latest America's Cup challenger, the Shamrock V, scored its third victory on the Clyde today and again proved itself an outstanding performer in light airs.

The result of today's race was decided on the first round, after which the race was stopped.

The times for today's event were: Shamrock, 3:55:10; White Heather, 3:57:50; Lulworth, 4:02:47. The Cambria was becalmed and gave up.

The race normally is over a 37-mile course. The Lipton yacht outdistanced Lulworth and the others with a clear lead from the first tack.

Macks Defeat Yankees, 5 to 4

Solve Johnson for 3 Runs in Seventh to Take Lead.

Grove Ends Rally in Ninth With Tying Run on Base.

PHILADELPHIA, July 3 (A.P.).—After a 55-minute interruption between the fifth and sixth innings because of rain, the Athletics staged a three-run rally in the seventh to gain a 5-to-4 decision over the New York Yankees today.

The Yanks took a three-run lead by scoring a run in the opening inning and two more in the fifth, but Jimmy Foxx drove in two counters as the rain started and the later rally completed the triumph. The champions got only five hits off Henry Johnson, but they collected them all in the two big innings. They also had the benefit of nine walks and two errors aided the seventh-inning rally.

Grove Puts Brakes On Rally.

New York scored a run in the ninth, but Mose Grove stopped the rally, retiring Lary and Ruth with the tying run on base. Ruth refused to let yesterday's painful injury keep him out of the game, but his bat was not particularly effective. He did not get a hit, walking twice and making one sacrifice.

Prince of Wales Loses Hat and Necktie at Golf

West Hartlepool, England, July 3 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales lost a Panama hat and a necktie playing golf with Lord Londonberry, Lord Castlereigh and Capt. Aird here yesterday. While the prince said, "It doesn't matter really," he hopes the hat will be found. A New York label in it should help.

The prince took off his hat and tie and handed them to his caddie, Andrews, but near the end of the round Andrews couldn't find them.

King of Spain Loses Again in Yacht Races

Bemridge, Isle of Wight, July 3 (A.P.).—King Alfonso of Spain today again accepted defeat when Capt. Norman's yacht Cutty won the 8-meter international class race in 2 hours and 36 minutes and 7 seconds with Alfonso's Hispania eighth. There were nine starters.

The king himself was at the helm of the Hispania.

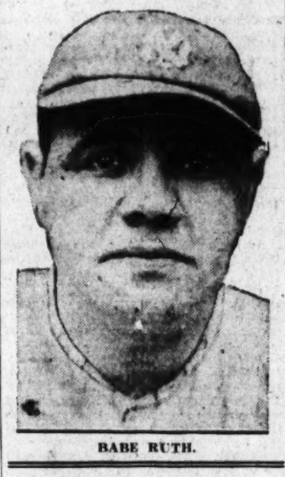
RUTH PLAYS DESPITE INJURY, WITH CROWD OF 28,000 EXPECTED



BABE RUTH.

Nats Sure to Draw Pipgras in Half of Double Bill.

Cronin Proving Star With Opportune Batting.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WEATHER permitting, the largest crowd of the season, probably around 28,000, is expected to turn out for the holiday double-header between the Nationals and Yankees at the Griffith Stadium this afternoon. The first game is scheduled to get under way at 1:30 o'clock.

It is an unusual feature about the Johnsons' showing so far this season that they hold the edge in meetings over every team in the league except those pesky St. Louis Browns, the Yankees having won but two of the seven games they have played with the Nats to date. But when the Capital City Team turned in these victories, "Bob the Gob" Shawkey, New York pilot, was having trouble getting his machine to click on all cylinders.

When the last Western trip started, however, the Yankees also started, the result being that they literally ran over every one of the teams in the other sector and, before the Mackmen and Nats realized it, the New Yorkers were right on their heels. While suddenly getting fair pitching, they benefited from slugging such as a manager dreams about, and they are now very much in the race.

Games Important To Rivals.

Right now they are trailing the Johnsons by a small margin, and the Nats, who also have been going great guns of late, must keep on traveling at the so-called "pace that kills" if they are to keep in front. This series, another of those "crocial things," may either give the Johnsons a substantial second-place lead—and top ranking in case the Athletics slip—or may drop them back into the third hole.

In one respect, the "breaks" are favoring the home team, for the one and only Babe Ruth may be unable to do his best today due to his injured finger, while Shortstop Lynn Larry, who has been performing brilliantly at short and hitting well, is out of action with a broken wrist. Ruth tore a fingernail off the finger of his left hand in the Chicago series Wednesday and, were it any one but the "King of Clout," it would be certain that he would be out of action. Ruth, however, is a fellow who is game to the core and who simply will not idle.

Fred Marberry, who has been pulling an "iron man" stunt of late, working exceptionally often, is due to perform on the hill for the Nats in one of these engagements, with "Sad Sam" Jones, usually effective against the Yanks, slated to try to make a comeback in the other. The latter has been inactive for a month because of illness, but declares that he is ready for a brilliant effort. George Pipgras is expected to do the hurling for the enemy in one of the games, while there is no telling whom Shawkey will nominate for the other.

Nats in Championship Form.

During the stand against the West which ended with a double-victory over the Browns, Wednesday, the Nationals performed like a championship team, playing 15 games and winning 12 of them, their triumphs including a streak of eight. It was an odd feature of this Western invasion that the lowly White Sox made the best showing against Johnson's men, sc-

Babe Says Club Needs Him and He'll Play Ball

PHILADELPHIA, July 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—"How long d'u spose you'll be out of the game with that busted fingernail, Babe?" asked Jimmy Dykes and Jimmy Foxx, of the A's, very solicitously when the Yanks reached Shibe Park today. "Hope it isn't more than a couple of days."

"Out nothin'," growled Mr. Ruth emphatically. "I'm not going to be out at all. I'm going to play today—and tomorrow and from then on. I'm all right."

And he was all right, although Doc Payner, Yankee trainer, advised very strongly against taking any risks with a finger which has no nail at all, the remnant left after the Babe tried to stop Reynold's homer in the White Sox game on Wednesday having been yanked out after the game.

Babe Decides Club Needs Him.

The Babe decided that the Yanks needed him more in their drive against the A's and Nats over the Fourth than he needed to nurse a stricken finger, so with it properly bandaged he went out in the batting practice and busted a few.

One of them went over the scoreboard in center field, a longish rap. So he played through the game, and while he didn't make any home runs, he hit the ball hard every time he was given a chance to.

He was passed twice, hit a long sacrifice fly and grounded hard to the infield twice.

"If he'd only 'a smacked that one in the ninth," mourned Eddie Bennett, Yank mascot, after the game. "But what's the use."

"Golf Marks" Denied New Jersey Pupils

Montclair, N. J., July 3 (A.P.).—A plan of Mrs. Jerome D. Travers, which included having school pupils' golf scores graded on report cards along with reading, writing and arithmetic as "excellent," "fair," or "poor" has met with disapproval of the town commission.

Mrs. Travers, wife of the former national amateur golf champion, had suggested that the commission lay out a course in Edgemont Park for children from 7 to 11 years of age, the course to be planned by her husband free of charge.

The commission referred the suggestion to a committee which reported no action would be taken.

CONCLAVE WINS ARLINGTON FEATURE BY 4 LENGTHS

Gracious Gift Takes Place Money

Risque Sets Record for 5 Furlongs in Fourth Race.

Issaquena Is Winner in Feature Event at Latonia.

CHICAGO, July 3 (A.P.).—Conclave, a 3-year-old brown filly by Friar Rock—Pow Wow, carried the colors of W. R. Coe to victory in the Midlothian, the featured number of a good program at Arlington Park this afternoon. Gracious Gift was second, with Cog Air third. The race, an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and up, over the mile route out of the chute, was run in 1:37 2-5, equalling the track record.

The race was worth $1,300 to the winner, and Conclave paid $18.88 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

Conclave, with but 90 pounds up, was away fast and quickly drew in front of Gracious Gift, increasing her lead at the stretch turn to four lengths, which she maintained to the end. Gracious Gift was taken into command right at the start, was headed by Conclave nearing the half-mile post and appeared beaten, but came again in the stretch to hold off Cog Air for the place. Cog Air, restrained off the pace to the stretch, responded gallantly, but could not menace the leaders.

A new track record for the five furlongs dash was established in the fourth race, when Mrs. J. D. Hertz's 2-year-old bay filly, Risque, dashed home the winner of the Good and Gay Allowance Stakes in 0:59 2-5, lopping off one-fifth of a second from the record made by Beautiful Doll in the first race on yesterday's card. Risque's margin of victory was but a nose over Aunt Deb.

Issaqueena Wins
At Latonia.

Latonia, Ky., July 3 (A.P.).—Issaquena, which races for the Paradise Stock Farm, captured the fourth and feature event, the Glenco Purse, this afternoon. The daughter of Tryster was in close quarters soon after the start, but worked her way up gradually to beat Deemster a nose. Elysium, accounted for the small end of the purse. The race was over the 5½ furlong route and was covered in 1:09 2-5.

Sovietta Scores
At Aqueduct.

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., July 3 (A.P.).—George D. Widener's Sovietta, showing a return of her old form, made a show of the fillies in the fourth, by winning the Astoria Stakes, feature of the card here today.

Sovietta in recent start ran about 3 furlongs and then finished out of the money. That race was very poor, but the players did not let it influence them today. They backed the filly literally off the boards. She opened at 4 to 1 and was pounded down to 8 to 5 favoritism. The Rancocas Stable Ladana was second and the Ramapo Stable's Chicsu third.

The start was good but the outside horses jammed, ruining their chances. Ladana and Sovietta were away on their toes and had the race between them all the way. Sovietta drew out in the stretch to win by three lengths. Ladana beat Chicsu half a length for the place. The race was worth $6,475 and the time was 0:59 2-5.

Jockey J. Burke was set down for the balance of the meeting on account of his ride in the second race.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Latonia Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LATONIA offers the Independence Day Handicap, with $10,000 added, as feature of its holiday card, at a mile and three-sixteenths. EASTER STOCKINGS has been prepared for some race other than a sprint, and this distance suits the Kentucky-bred horse and he should win. This idea also seems to prevail with the track handicapper, who has allotted top weight to him. ROYAL JULIAN appears to be the contender, and is in very light. Third money may go to the filly THISTLE FYRN. ISLAM has an outside chance, and the Keene lemon, JEAN VALJEAN, may get in the money.

FIRST RACE—ZOOM should win the first race easily. This Whitney horse, at one time considered of stake quality, has fallen into the claiming class, but seldom in as cheap a field as this. WATCH ON should get place money. ESTIN is a meace and would be more so on a heavy track. BIRDIE WRACK also should be considered if there is a change in track conditions.

THE SECOND RACE is the BETSY ROSS PURSE for 2-year-olds. SQUALL is the class and will have ALYSSUM to beat. ADA EPINARD may be a good one, being from Epinard, the French horse now in this country. SQUALL qualified in the East and ran two very good races.

THIRD RACE—Ellice may reverse the finish on STOCK MARKET in the third race. The Camden filly will wake up soon. On her spring form she should win easily, but STOCK MARKET'S recent racing has been better. FIDDLER also seems to be in form and will figure in the race.

THE FOURTH is for 2-year-olds. OSWEGO will have MISS CHILLA, recent winner, to beat. LIBERTY ACE is still knocking at the door, and will get in before long. OSWEGO has the edge in this event. FUDGE also is a fair sort and may improve.

SIXTH RACE—SOUR MASH will have MY HOBBY to beat in the sixth race and it will prove a tough proposition. The two are well matched, but SOUR MASH may be best suited to the distance and is a beaten favorite. That makes a difference sometimes. ELEVEN SIXTY is a very good plater.

SEVENTH RACE—MYTH should take the seventh. NELLIE LYONS will be close up and probably be the favorite. She won a few days ago. SPECTACULAR is best of the others, for third money.

Arlington Park, Chicago, offers a big holiday card, including the Stars and Stripes Handicap, $20,000 added. Sun Beau was fit when he was sent West. He lost his first engagement, but should be in better shape after that race. The Kilmer horse and Silverdale are expected to fight it out, but the distance is better suited to Sun Beau. Misstep seems sluggish, but is dangerous and should be in the money.

RECORD FIELD OPENS PLAY FOR D. C. NET TITLES

43d Tourney Draws 122 Entries

Charest to Defend Title Despite Lack of Practice.

7 of 8 Seeded Players Perform in First Round Today.

THE forty-third annual District of Columbia Tennis Championship Tournament opens at 10 o'clock this morning on the courts of Edgemoor Club with all but one of the eight seeded players due to appear in first round matches. Bob Considine, winner of the City of Washington singles and doubles titles, who heads the seeded list, drew a bye in the opening round.

Practically all of the leading tennis players of Washington and Baltimore, accompanied by stars of the Army and Navy Leech Cup squads and one member of the Mexico Davis Cup team—Frederico Sendel, who remained here following the interzone final with the United States team—are included in the record field of 122 championship aspirants.

Charest, 1929 Champ, To Compete.

Clarence Charest, 1929 singles title holder, is entered and will oppose an unknown named Morrison in the first round. Tom Mangan, coholder of the doubles championship with Considine, will meet one Markey, while Dooly Mitchell, Georgetown University star, seeded No. 2, is matched against Larry Phillips, of George Washington University. Sendel will play another comparative unknown in Halstead.

Charest has had little practice thus far this season and is not favored to retain his title. He is seeded fifth, one place behind Billy Jacobs, of Baltimore, recently crowned Middle Atlantic junior champion.

The committee in charge has requested that the contestants dress at home instead of at the club in order to avoid congestion in the locker room the first two days. It also was requested that players, where possible, arrange among themselves to play first round matches at the Rock Creek courts, Sixteenth and Kennedy streets, and to report the scores to Edgemoor. By playing at Rock Creek, many players can save several miles of traveling.

The doubles entry list will close today at 6 p. m. at the club. Considine and Mangan again will form one combination. Jacobs and Mitchell probably will compose another team.

Today's pairings follow:

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., July 3.—One of the most elaborate holiday programs ever given by the Belle Haven Country Club will be given tomorrow afternoon beginning at 1:30 o'clock under the supervision of Jimmy Duncan, chairman of the house committee. The program is called the stay-at-home program, for members of the club who are unable to leave the city. This idea started last year and this year has created quite a bit of interest among its members.

Along with the special events, the qualifying rounds for the Belle Haven bowl will be played over the course, the best sixteen players to qualify. The events arranged for tomorrow are as follows: Putting contest for ladies and men; driving contest for ladies and men; Cross-country golf match for both ladies and men; diving contest, and races for all the children. The cross-country golf match, the event that seems to be causing quite a bit of interest, will be played as follows: No. 1 back tee, No. 1 to No. 9 green; No. 2 back tee, No. 6 to No. 8 green; No. 3 back tee, No. 9 to No. 6 green; No. 4 front tee, No. 8 to No. 7 green; No. 5 back tee, No. 7 to No. 4 green. After dinner a beautiful display of fireworks has been arranged for the members and their guests.

Four baseball games in three days will be played by the Cardinal A. C. as stated today by Manager Devaughn. A double-header will be played at Baggett's Field tomorrow, the first game starting at 10:30, between the Chevy Chase Grays, while at 3 o'clock they will cross bats with the Mohawk A. C. On Saturday the team will travel to Vienna to play the Fire Department from that city, while on Sunday they will meet the Capitol Heights Team in Martland. A large crowd is expected to be on hand tomorrow to witness both games.

The St. Mary's Celtics left the city today for Covington, Va., where they will play a three-game series with the West Virginia Paper & Pulp Co. Nine. A twin bill will be played tomorrow, while the last game will be played on Saturday afternoon. They will return home Sunday to play the Bobbies Team, consisting of all girls, on Baggett's field. Manager Corbett has securied Brownie Lemeric to manage the team for the remainder of the season, but Brownie was unable to make the trip today. He will take charge of the team when it returns home on Sunday afternoon.

The Clovers and the Colonial A. C., will clash in two games tomorrow afternoon, with the first game starting at 1:30, while the second will start immediately afterward. Both teams being made up of local boys, they should both be real ball games. The games will be played on the Colonial Field.

Manager Gammager, of the Del Ray A. C., stated today that his team would be idle over the holiday and would swing into action on Sunday.

YANKS HERE TODAY FOR DOUBLE-HEADER

counting for two of the native losses and breaking even in the four-game set.

Against the Indians, who seem to have shot their bolt, the Washington entry made a clean-up in four games and then followed with another one of three at the expense of Bucky Harris' Tigers. After dividing the first two games with the Browns, the Nats then took a thrilling double-header Wednesday, as fans posibly remember.

Although winning but three series, the Nats received brilliant pitching and did some terrific clouting, getting much the better of all opponents, both individually and collectively. At bat, Johnson's men averaged better than 10 hits and 6 runs per game, scoring 97 times as a result of 169 hits as against only 50 runs and 120 hits from allen bats. Afield, the home gang averaged alightly more than an error per game, being charged with 17 as against 30 for opposing teams.

Players Want Both Games.

With the pitching staff generally in tip-top shape and the Nat sluggers slugging, the worst that can seen for the Johnsons is an even break with the Yankees, while the players to a man declare that they will not be satisfied with anything less than three triumphs.

While casting about for a hero to put on a pedestal, fans should not overlook Shortstop Joe Cronin. This lad, in the opinion of many experts, is as much responsible for the Nats' great work as any other one man. While he kicks in with errors now and then, often on easy plays, nevertheless, he turns in more than his share of brilliant ones, is always out there trying, and is what Skipper Johnson describes as the "ideal type of player to have around."

As regards the "San Francisco Keed's" hitting, it speaks for itself. He is not leading the Nationals as far as averages are concerned, but he has the happy faculty of making many of his hits at critical times, the result being that he rates fourth in the league in that important item, runs driven in. Joe's all wool and a yard wide.

Already Heinie Manush has made himself a prime favorite here and he has shown that Goose Goslin will not be missed. After seeing him day in and day out, and also taking a peek at "General" Alvin Crowder's pitching record, one must, indeed, doff his cap to President Clark Griffith as a trader.

Even Goslin was surprised that the Browns rated him so highly. Last Wednesday, before leaving town with the Browns, the Goose paid the Nat owner a little visit. "Tell the truth, Mr. Griffith," he said, "Honstly, didn't you have to throw in some money with me in that trade which got you Manush and Crowder?" When advised that no cash was involved, Goslin apparently did a little thinking aloud, mumbling: "I certainly didn't think I was that good." And, after seeing Manush and Crowder here, most of the Washington fans seem to agree with the Goose.

President Clark C. Griffith announced last night that Harley Boss, first baseman, had been sent to the Reading Club of the International League on a 24-hour option. Boss was recently returned to the Nats by Jersey City. Officials of that club claimed that Boss was suffering a leg injury, which was not substantiated by X-rays taken here.

CHANGE TEAM NAME.

The newly organized nine which has been known as the Washington A. C. Seniors will henceforth campaign as the Stanley A. C. Jack Davidson is booking games at Metropolitan 0923. The Sterlings are challenged.

TO ENGAGE MEDICOS.

The Army Medicos, contenders for District section unlimited honors in the Capital City League, and the Bauserman Motor Co. Nine, which is leading the Virginia section race, will clash Sunday at Arlington at 3 o'clock.

The Kent School boys, who averaged only 18 years of age, appeared undistressed at the finish, cheering their opponents loudly

Policeman Discharged As Verdict Is Upheld

Policeman Lyman L. Leich, of the Fifth Precinct, was dropped from the Police Department rolls yesterday when the District Commissioners confirmed the decision of the Police Trial Board from which Leich had appealed.

Leich was tried for unbecoming conduct following an automobile accident at Minnesota and Pennsylvania avenues southeast last March. The machine he was driving turned over several times, injuring him. He said that he had been chasing a suspected rum runner who used a smoke screen. His story was investigated and the Trial Board found him guilty of making untruthful statements, reckless driving and prejudicial conduct, and sentenced him to be dismissed. The Commissioners confirmed the verdict.

ARMY FINALS MARRED BY INJURY

Van Vliet and Finley Win When Hedekin Sprains Ankle.

MAJS. ROBERT C. VAN VLIET, Jr., and Thomas D. Finley retained the Army doubles tennis championship in an untimely ending of the final match yesterday at Columbia Country Club, their opponents, Lieuts. David D. Hedekin and S. K. Robinson, defaulting in the midst of a gruelling battle when Hedekin sprained his right ankle.

Leading by one set, 7—5, but trailing in games, 12—13, in the second set, the 1929 winners were abruptly assured the title for another year. Hedekin stumbled while chasing a shot down the sideline, his ankle being so badly sprained that he had to be carried off the court.

It was an especially crushing blow to Lieut. Hedekin, for only the day before the singles title slipped from his grasp, due to a couple of breaks of luck which favored his adversary, Lieut. John W. Strahan, who then went on to win the championship.

Terrific Struggle Waged.

Seldom before has an Army tennis tournament witnessed such a terrific struggle as yesterday's finalists waged. Evenly matched with age and experience on one side and youth and power on the other, the two pairs fought doggedly for every point. As the match was to be decided on the best three-out-of-five basis, all indications pointed to a full-length contest.

Both sides hit top speed early in the first set, and in their eagerness sacrificed something in the way of good tennis. Many points were the result of nets and outs.

The veterans Van Vliet and Finley took the lead at 2—1, breaking Hedekin's service, but the youngsters rallied to smash Van Vliet's delivery in the fourth game and draw level. Games went with service in the fifth and sixth, and an exchange of service breaks kept the match even through the eighth. Robinson's hard hitting gave the challengers the lead at 5—4, but once again it was deadlocked as Van Vliet uncorked a devastating series of smashes at the net. Then Hedekin lost control, serving in the eleventh, and Van Vliet won on his own delivery in the twelfth to take the set.

Champions Appear Easy Winners.

It appeared that the champions would run away with the second set, as they captured the first four games in a row, breaking through Robinson in the opener and through Hedekin in the third. At this stage the challengers displayed their courage, reeling off three wins, starting with a love game on Robinson's service. Van Vliet-Finley went to 5—3 in the eighth, but saw their margin completely wiped out in the next two games.

In the eleventh game started the ding-dong succession of service wins which continued until the end. Robinson-Hedekin reached set point in the fourteenth game with Finley serving, only to lose their chance on an error.

Van Vliet and Finley were presented silver cups emblematic of the championship by Gen. Edward L. King.

The point scores follow:

FIRST SET.

Van Vliet—Finley—
1 4 4 2 2 4 4 0 4 4 4 5—38—7

STOCK PRICES DROP IRREGULARLY LOWER

Favorite Issues Lose From 1 to 2 Points; Special Shares Hard Hit.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY OFF

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—The bears touched off a few firecrackers under the stock list today. The explosions were not strong enough to shake the market, but it did settle a bit and closed for the three-day vacation with prices of favorite shares 1 to 2 points net lower. Larger losses in special stocks were fairly numerous.

Trading was very quiet and quite professional, especially in the morning. Sales for the first half hour totaled only 134,500 shares, the smallest since November 22, 1928, when the stock exchange began keeping official record. Quotations moved indecisively until around noon, when the professional short interest became more venturesome and put out some new lines to hold over the holiday, shoving duPont, May Department Stores, Spiegel May Stern, Gillette, Celotex, Timken Roller Bearing, Atlantic Coast Line and a few others to new lows for the year. The chemical stocks were also weak.

News of the day was mixed. Wall Street viewed Chrysler's announcement of a 10 per cent salary cut in connection with its possible bearing on dividend stability, and the stock held firm. The weekly business reviews summed up the situation, as usual, in the word "quiet," although Dun's said that readjustments now in progress "should ultimately form a basis for a new economic advance." It added that more time would be required for the transition to be completed "because of its widespread ramifications."

Brokers' Loans Decline.

As was the case yesterday, the best news came after the close of the market, when the $197,000,000 drop in brokers' loans was announced. This brings the total to $3,219,000,000 and the decline in the past four weeks to $882,000,000. It also aligns the Federal Reserve figures, which include borrowings on bonds by distributors, more closely with the reduction of more than $1,000,000,000 in New York Stock Exchange member borrowings on security collateral.

The decrease during the week ended Tuesday, in which the stock market had advanced, was interpreted as a reflection of the improved bond business. Whereas bond houses have recently been reported as borrowing to carry the heavy new offerings, it was regarded as probable that the better inquiry in that market in the last week or two had resulted in a movement of securities from dealers' shelves to the portfolios of investors.

Wheat was heavy, losing about 1 to 2 cents net. The Department of Agriculture announced that world wheat prices would be lower during the next seven years than during the last seven. In addition, Chairman Legge of the Farm Board said in a radio address that the answer to existing problems was to be found in an adjustment of production so that it would "more nearly conform to potential domestic demand."

Cotton Closes Lower.

The cotton market was largely under the influence of professional operations incident to the holiday. The close was 10 to 14 points lower. Corn eased fractionally.

Weakness of the chemical shares carried Allied Chemical down 11 points net, Columbian Carbon 8 and Air Reduction 9. Du Pont moved up from the bottom price of 98⅞, but closed 3 points net lower. U. S. Steel got nearly 3 points below the Wednesday close before late covering reduced the loss to a full point. In the main, other leading stocks acted similarly, although American Can was persistently heavy and nearly 3 points off on the day. American Telephone, General Electric, Bethlehem Steel and Consolidated Gas yielded about a point. Westinghouse dropped 3, Gillette and Southern Railway preferred 4, J. I. Case 9, and Eastman Kodak 7.

Foreign exchanges were firm to strong. Sterling cables rallied nearly a quarter of a cent. One of the few weak spots was the Spanish peseta, which again broke sharply.

SEVERAL RAIL BONDS RISE; MARKET QUIET

New German 5½ Per Cent Issue Drops Nearly Two Points.

FOREIGN SECTION FIRM

New York, July 3 (A.P.)—Railroad bonds were the major interest of investment buyers in the listed bond market today.

An extensive list of issues were strong as the reinvestment demand influenced higher prices. Other lien issues ruled firm in a dull trading session which adjourned activity for a three-day week-end. Stock privilege issues were irregular in sympathy with the weakness of stocks.

The German 5½ per cent bond, whose appearance excited more interest than any foreign loan in many years, lost nearly 2 points at the opening of the market, following dissolution of the offering syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. A break in price usually follows such action, but bond men did not anticipate that it would be as sharp. In a turnover of nearly $1,000,000 the bond fluctuated between 88½ and 89¼ and closed at 88⅜, a loss of 1⅛ from yesterday's closing price of 90 at which the bond was issued. The weakness did not affect the rest of the foreign market.

New York Central 3½s made the best gain in the railroad group, rising 2¾ points. Other issues of the company were firm on thin sales. Best buying of domestic rails centered in Albany and Susquehanna 3½s, which gained 1½ points; Atchison General 4s, Canadian Northern 6½s, Rock Island 4s, Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s, which closed at a new year's high; Erie 5s, Illinois Central 4s, Louisville & Arkansas 5s, Nickel Plate 4½s, and Union Pacific refunding 5s.

Investment demand also aided utility issues. Duquesne Light 4½s, Detroit Edison refunding 5s, American Telephone 5½s and debenture 5s, North American Edison 5s appreciated moderately. Pacific Gas & Electric 5s equaled the year's high, and New York Telephone 4½s established a new high mark for the year with a ½-point gain. General Cable 5½s lost nearly 2 points to sell at the lowest price of the year.

Among industrials, International Paper refunding 5s appreciated 2½ points and was followed into higher ground by several other of the best grade corporation issues in the miscellaneous class. Sugar company bonds lost more ground except Vertientes 7s, which gained 1 point. Keith Corporation first 6s dropped 8 points.

Foreign bonds did not follow the German 5½ bond into lower ground, holding firm. Belgium 6s rose ¾ of a point to a new high. Chilean government and mortgage bank issues and Colombian 6s, Uruguay 8s and Peru 6s were strong. German General Electric warrant 6½s lost 5 points, but other German issues were not depressed by the drop in German 5½s. Tokio Electric Light 6s rose ¾ of a point.

Fifth Ave. Fashions
NEW YORK

It's delightfully cool! It's girlish and pretty, too! And just as simple as it can be!

The skirt is laid in plaits at either side of the front and the back. It is gathered at center front and center back and stitched to yoke. That's all there is to the making of this darling dress of white batiste with French blue batiste dotted in white trim.

Style No. 610 comes in sizes, 2, 4 and 6 years.

For the 4-year size it takes but 1½ yards of 39-inch white batiste and seven-eighths of a yard of 39-inch blue and white batiste for trimming bands and yokes.

Pale blue dotted swiss, yellow organdie, pink pique, white cotton broadcloth with red pin dots, nile green and white printed sheer lawn and orchid and white gingham check with white pique band and yoke are effective combinations.

Price of pattern, 15 cents. Address Fashion Department, Washington Post, 259 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Inclosed is 15 cents. Please send to

BUCK ROGERS, 2430 A. D. — Attacks Mutineers — By Phil Nowlan and Dick Calkins

JOE MARTIN HAD BROUGHT ME WORD THAT BURK AND TALLAN, INFLUENCED BY ILLANA AND GUARYA, WERE OPENLY MUTINOUS, AND WERE THREATENING TO BEAT ME UP. I HUNTED THEM UP INSTANTLY. SUDDENLY I CAME UPON THEM IN THE ROYAL GARDENS. DELIBERATELY I TAUNTED THEM.
I THOUGHT I'D FIND YOU TWO CAKE EATERS MUSHING AROUND HERE TAKING YOUR ORDERS FROM GIRLS!
LISTEN HERE, BUCK ROGERS! YOU CAN'T TALK TO US LIKE THAT, AND WHAT'S MORE IF WILMA — OH YEAH? YOU'LL DO WHAT? YOU AND WHO ELSE?
SH-DEAR! BE CAREFUL!
WELL, YOU LEAVE WILMA ALONE OR WE WILL —
IF I HAD YOU ON JUPITER, I'D —
I COULD RESTRAIN MYSELF NO LONGER. I LEAPED AT THEM.
YOU MUTINEERS! YOU TRAITORS!
YOU BIG BUM!
WELL, IF YOU WILL HAVE IT!
HELP! HELP!

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL MAY PUBLISH DIARY

James R. Caton's "Jottings" of City and State Are Likely to Be Printed.

ELECTRIC BIDS UP NEXT

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Owing to the absence of Mayor Robert S. Jones and Councilman J. E. W. Timberman, the city council yesterday failed to take action on the two bids recently received for a 30-year franchise for furnishing electric current to the city, to take the place of the present franchise held by the Virginia Public Service Co. This company submitted a bid for the new franchise, as did R. W. Herfurth, of Alexandria, representing a company which was not named in his bid.

A resolution was introduced by Councilman Ticer, and approved, requesting Attorney James R. Caton, who will celebrate this month the fiftieth anniversary of his entering the practice of law here, to permit the council to have published in pamphlet form the series of articles which Mr. Caton has been publishing in the press from time to time, entitled "Jottings from the Annals of Virginia and Alexandria." The resolution points out that these articles are of great historic value and interest, and, in the event Mr. Caton consents to their publication, instructs the city manager to make the necessary arrangements for printing. No provision was made for distribution of the pamphlet when published.

The council received and accepted the resignation as a member of the city school board of Councilman-elect Arthur Herbert, and also received a communication from the school board suggesting the appointment of R. H. C. Beverley as successor to Mr. Herbert. Mr. Herbert's resignation becomes effective September 1, and his successor will be chosen by that time.

A resolution was introduced appropriating $2,650 for improving the street known as Masonic View, when the abutting property owners shall have agreed to pay their proportion of the cost, which is estimated at $1,768, the remainder of the $2,650 to be borne by the city.

An appropriation of $500 was made for construction of a sewer just east of the 800 block North Washington street, between Montgomery and Madison streets, to connect with the existing sewer.

A resolution was adopted requesting the judge of the Corporation Court to appoint a planning commission for the purpose of properly dividing the city into zones.

The city collector was directed to offer for sale all real estate on which the 1929 taxes have not been paid, and the date of the sale of this property was set for August 4. It is understood there is approximately $31,000 of delinquent taxes outstanding, a substantial part of which will, no doubt, be paid before the date set for the sale. In these sales the city usually bids in the property, which may be redeemed by the payment of taxes, penalty, accrued interest and expenses of sale.

A request of the Alexandria Amusement Co. for a permit to erect a marquise in front of the Ingomar Theater was granted.

A complaint from C. B. Moore, signed by a number of property owners, regarding the alleged smoke nuisance at the plant of the Virginia Public Service Co., was received, and the council was informed that engineers are now at work at the plant of the company with the view of abating the nuisance.

The council will meet next Wednesday afternoon for consideration of the electric light franchise, the milk ordinance, and such other matters as may be brought before it, and it is expected that will be the last meeting until September 1, when three new councilmen will take their seats.

The Boy Scouts of Alexandria plan a big outing today at Dripping Springs, one of the features of which will be a parade. Those who will participate in the parade will form on the 100 block North Washington street at 1 o'clock today and go directly to the camp, some of the boys being accompanied by their parents. Buses will leave Washington and Franklin streets at 1 and 7 p. m., returning at 9:30 p. m. From 2 until 5 o'clock there will be various games, and from 5 to 7 o'clock supper will be served. From 7 to 8 there will be a number of contests and from 8 to 9 the program provides for camp fire, songs, stunts, fireworks and other amusement features. During the afternoon and evening music will be furnished by two drum corps and a band.

The will of Charles R. Craddock, Southern Railway engineer who shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Blanche Craddock, and then fatally wounded himself, in Washington, Monday, was admitted to probate in the Circuit Court here yesterday. The instrument is dated March 3, 1930. The estate is valued at $25,445.89, including an apartment house valued at $25,000, and the balance is in cash in bank. The entire estate is left to Craddock's two children, Alice Blanche Craddock and Charles Robert Craddock. The testator's brother, E. Withers Craddock, is named as executor and guardian of the two children. E. W. Craddock being a native of North Carolina, it was necessary for a local person to qualify, and William A. Craddock, another brother, was also named.

Dan S. Hollenga, newly elected business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, will address the July meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club in the George Mason Hotel next Tuesday. Supper will be served at 7 o'clock, and the program will follow, with Mrs. Mary Troth, president, in the chair.

Survey Work Is Opened On Dan, Roanoke Rivers

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., July 3.—With the virtual completion of aerial photographic work, ground surveyors have commenced their part of the work in connection with the United States War Department's survey of the Dan and Roanoke Rivers, which is part of a national program to determine possibilities and gather data to be used in the Government's flood control program.

The ground work calls for surveys to determine scales and elevations and other acts pertaining to the undertaking. The aerial photographers still have small sections in various districts to photograph because of defects on the original photographs.

BAILEY ATTACKS HOOVER

Raleigh, N. C., July 3 (A.P.).—North Carolina's Democratic legions today heard leaders of the party sound a keynote of optimism for the success of the party, and adopted a new platform which reaffirmed the belief of the Democrats in prohibition.

Josiah W. Bailey, of Raleigh, Democratic senatorial nominee, made the longest address of the day when he spoke for 1 hour and 15 minutes this afternoon pleading for party harmony and assailing the Hoover administration.

L. R. Varser, of Lumberton, was the convention keynoter. Gov. O. Max Gardner, Clyde R. Hoey, of Shelby, and A. L. Brooks, of Greensboro, all addressed the gathering.

There was no evidence of any discord within the party on the convention floor. The session, which started at noon, was attended by about 2,500 people. Mr. Bailey received an ovation as he went to the speaker's stand after a recess for luncheon, the demonstration being the most enthusiastic of the convention.

After expressing his appreciation of being the nominee of the Democratic party, Mr. Bailey declared that in his opinion "the Democrats of North Carolina love the Democratic party more than any individual State." He lauded the principles of the Democratic party and declared it "stood faithful for everything for the good of the American people."

Mr. Bailey attacked the Hoover administration and the Republican party for "Hoover prosperity and Hoover promises which have been broken in every instance."

North Carolina Democrats, he said, will not have accomplished what they should until "everything that was lost in the unfortunate campaign of 1928 has been retrieved." He predicted an all-Democratic congressional delegation from North Carolina after the November election.

MARYLAND COUNTIES TO HAVE GAY FOURTH

Parades, Races, Fireworks Slated for Montgomery and Prince Georges.

FIRE COMPANIES ACTIVE

Nearby Virginia will celebrate the Fourth today with varied events. County offices and banks and most of the business establishments of both Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties will be closed, the county offices remaining closed Saturday also. Parades and other patriotic exercises will be held in many of the towns.

Probably the most extensive community celebration will be that held at Takoma Park, where the annual Fourth of July celebration promises to be bigger than in past years. At Kensington and at Cabin John Park the volunteer fire departments are holding celebrations and contests for the benefit of the fire fighting funds.

One of the most elaborate in Prince Georges County will be the annual affair at St. Barnabas Church, Leeland, and at Seabrook.

Parade at Kensington.

Takoma Park will have a marathon race, a parade of floats, for which prizes will be awarded, and fireworks. The parade will move to the music of the Army Band, the Review and Herald Band and the Victory Post Drum and Bugle Corps of the American Legion. Rudolph Wilson, who for several years has handled the fireworks program, again will have charge of an augmented program. Mrs. H. E. Ewing is in charge of hospitality and will entertain the guests of the general committee at a luncheon in the Takoma School.

The athletic program which includes a marathon run under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union is in charge of Capt. C. L. Boyer and Col. Frank Moorman. Other committee chairman are John W. Coffman, publicity; Maj. J. B. K. Lee, reception; William M. Leavitt, printing; Herbert W. Rutledge, guest committee; Christian Huff, lighting; Oscar E. Dietz, treasurer; Martin Iverson, custodian of property Mayor Ben G. Davis will preside at the patriotic exercises.

Kensington's events will start with a parade, which will be reviewed at the National Guard Armory and will then proceed to the carnival grounds at St. Paul street and Forest Glen road, where contests will be held. A silver loving cup will be awarded by The Washington Post to the volunteer fire company making the best appearance in the parade. Silver loving cups also will be awarded to the winners of a hook-up contest for volunteer firemen, a hook-up contest for women's auxiliaries and for a first-aid contest for rescue squads.

The general committee in charge includes A. L. Geiger, chairman; Fire Chief M. D. Curran, Assistant Chief H. R. Magruder, J. P. Raney, E. Stubbs, R. Burdett and E. J. Raney. They will be assisted by several subcommittees.

Patuxent Club Program.

The volunteer fire company is sponsoring the annual celebration at Cabin John Park, the proceeds of the carnival events to be devoted to payment for the fire engine recently purchased by the company. A parade of gayly decorated automobiles, led by the Potomac Band, will be the main feature, ending in judging of the floats at the Cabin John-Glen Echo School near Cabin John Bridge, on Conduit road. The new fire apparatus will be on exhibition. A chicken supper and a fireworks display will be held in the evening.

The committee in charge includes D. S. Tuohey, chairman; Norman Lynch, J. T. Lynch, C. E. Benson, A. Riggles, Joe Blandford, Thomas Sullivan and Vernon Ricketts.

Residents of the northern section of Prince Georges will attend a celebration by the Patuxent Hunt Club, which will be held on the T. Claude Welsh farm, on the Fort Meade-Laurel road. Some of the finest hunters and Army horses in Prince Georges and Anne Arundel Counties will participate.

CULPEPER TO START HORSE SHOW TODAY

300 Entries From Capital, West Virginia, Maryland, Ohio and Virginia.

10 RACES ON SCHEDULE

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., July 3.—The acquisition for breeding purposes of several large properties in this vicinity by Northern capitalists interested in horses is adding impetus to the twenty-sixth annual exhibition of the Culpeper Horse Show and Racing Association, which will be held here tomorrow and Saturday.

Three hundred entries, made by more than 50 owners, indicate full classes and plenty of competition. Almost every county in eastern and northern Virginia is represented in the entry list, and there are scattered entries from the District of Columbia, West Virginia, Maryland and Ohio.

Five races each day on the half-mile track will augment the show ring exhibitions. While entries are usually permitted until the day of the race, already three races for each day have been filled. R. W. Huffman, race manager, said tonight he had been called on for reservations for the largest number of race horses ever brought to the track, in spite of a threatened boycott by certain local owners who wanted the entrance fees lowered.

Mrs. Lee Enters Seven.

Broken Glass, last year's winner of the hunter championship, will not be shown here this year because of lameness, it is understood. His owner, Mrs. D. N. Lee, of Middleburg, has entered six other horses from her stable in several of the events, and is expected to make a good try to strengthen her hold on the Culpeper Challenge Plate, the coveted prize of northern Virginia horse shows, which must be won three times by the same owner to secure permanent possession.

The last plate was won by Mrs. Lee in 1926, 1927 and 1928. Last year she won the first leg on the new plate.

Misses Edith and Elizabeth Nesbit, of Warrenton, have entered Squiffy and Cathode Ray, who were winners at the Keswick Hunt Club last month. Miss Edith Nesbit rode Squiffy at that show to win the Albemarle County Hunt Trophy.

It was thought at first that the horses of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Corley, of Richmond, which took nine places at the Deep Run Hunt Show in Richmond, would not be shown here this year. A telephone call from Mr. Corley, however, revealed that his entries had been delayed and that he intended shipping his string here. This indicates that Little Frills, owned by Manley Carter, of Orange, which took second in the hunter championship at the Deep Run show, again will compete with Corley's Princess O'Dare, which won that event.

Capital Owners Enter.

The list of owners follows:

Leon Arnold, Center Market, Washington; W. Frank Burrows, 4535 Wisconsin avenue, Washington; W. B Bogert, Keswick; C. R. Borst, Brandy; P. M. Browning, Culpeper; Frank Cockrell, Nokesville; Clifton Farm Berryville; R. H. Covington, Griffinsburg; Mrs. Jefferies Chewning, 2540 Massachusetts avenue, Washington; Mrs. Manley W. Carter, Orange; C. W Byers, Fort Defiance; J. E. Barker Warrenton; Mrs. Elizabeth Augustus Willoughby, Ohio; Miss Mae Ferneyhough, Warrenton.

Lee, Middleburg; E B. Lee, Millidale; J. Carl Kincheloe, Manassas; Davis M. McDonald, Leesburg; Mrs. D. K. Miley, Upperville, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. ARLINGTON TO HAVE NOISY CELEBRATION

Sale of Fireworks Goes On Apace With Lifting of Ban by County Heads.

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Contrary to past years, when the County Board of Supervisors barred the sale of firecrackers within the confines of Arlington County, today promises to be one of the noisiest Fourths that the citizens have experienced in a number of years as the result of the lifting of the ban on the sale of fireworks.

In accordance with the board's action at its recent meeting merchants have been selling firecrackers in every section of the county since Tuesday and despite the ruling of the board that none should be fired until today the county authorities have been powerless to prevent it.

Since Tuesday night, the office of Sheriff Howard B. Fields has been busy in answering hundreds of calls asking that the children be stopped from firing fireworks.

In addition to the general display which will result in all sections of the county during the day and night, there will be special displays at the firemen's carnival in Clarendon and in the park at Lyon Park under the auspices of the Lyon Park Citizens' Association.

With a county-wide search in progress for the culprit who is entering homes in the county during the day in the absence of the occupants, housewives are warned not to leave any doors or windows open when leaving their homes.

During the past few days four reports have been received by Sheriff Howard B. Fields from persons that their homes have been entered in their absence and many valuable articles taken.

The latest report comes from Attorney Walter U. Varney, who lives on Virginia avenue, in Lyon Village, who reports his home was entered yesterday about noon. Mr. Varney reports the loss of a bracelet valued at $50.

Large delegations of klansmen and klanswomen from Arlington County will go to Richmond to take part in the annual celebration at Richmond today and tonight.

Klansmen, klanswomen, Tri-K girls, junior klan boys, klavaliers and the Ballston Klan Band of more than 50 pieces will leave this morning at 9:30 o'clock in busses and private automobiles.

There will be other delegations from Potomac, Alexandria and Fairfax who will be joined by large groups from Maryland and the District of Columbia.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the annual carnival of the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will hold a meeting Tuesday night in the firemen's hall to complete plans. The carnival will be given the week of August 2.

The committee is composed of A. C. Scheffel, chairman; Charles L. Snoots, Carl E. Scheffel, Earl Beauchamp, Elmer J. Blackmer, John A. Dawkins, Herbert L. Wilson, George F. Cook and Thomas J. Snoots.

President Julian E. Tapp announces the appointment of the following members of the department on the publicity committee: A. C. Scheffel, chairman; John A. Dawkins, Herbert L. Wilson and Elmer J. Blackmer.

Offices at the county courthouse will be closed today. Tomorrow the offices will close at 12 o'clock noon.

Meeting last night at the home of Thomas J. DeLashmutt, members of the "Ball for Congress Club" from Arlington Precinct perfected plans for the carrying on of an exhaustive campaign in the interest of State Senator Frank L. Ball, one of the five candidates seeking the Democratic nomination at the primary to be held August 5.

President Emery Hosmer stated yesterday that plans are now under way for the organizing of a woman's auxiliary in the interest of Senator Ball.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Arlington Fairfax County Firemen's Relief Association will hold its monthly meeting Monday night at 8 o'clock in the Clarendon Firemen's Hall.

William Griffin, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was held for the action of the grnad jury by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday. He was later released on $500 bond for his appearance at the October term of the circuit court.

Bail Set for Trio Of Defunct Firm

Indicted Norfolk Men Will Be Tried on Grand Larceny Charge.

Norfolk, Va., July 3 (A.P.).—Bail bonds of $5,000 each for three indicted officers of the Guaranty Title & Trust Corporation were agreed upon today at a conference of attorneys, Commonwealth's Attorney Harry E. McCoy and Judge William H. Sargent, who will try the cases.

Smaller bonds will be required in the case of four employes of the corporation who were also indicted last night by a special grand jury at completion of investigation of affairs of the concern, which failed last June with liabilities estimated at $16,000,000. Assets were placed at more than $17,000,000, including numerous mortgages on real estate in Virginia and North Carolina.

Those for whom bond of $5,000 was fixed are A. P. Grice, who was president of the corporation; V. A. Butte, vice president, and John S. Persons, treasurer. It was indicated that bonds of $2,000 to $2,500 would be accepted for A. H. Callow, of the bond department; J. H. Tatem, his assistant; F. W. McKinney, loan representative of the company in North Carolina, and C. F. Means, of the real estate department.

REPORT SUBMITTED ON WELFARE WORK

HOLIDAY PROGRAM SET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The report of Mrs. Louise S. Manghum, superintendent of public welfare of Fairfax County, who has served without compensation since November 1, 1929, shows that $408 has been donated for welfare work by private individuals and organizations; that $212.50 of this sum was spent for food, fuel, doctors, hospital, drugs, rent, telegrams, clothing and board for women and children awaiting transportation to Richmond, and $97.50 for expenses of the welfare worker.

Mrs. Manghum's telephone bill for the last eight months amounted to $54 and the cost of operating her car was $200. From donations received, $97.50 was used to pay expenses, while the balance of her expenses was paid by Mrs. Manghum, who also gave her services free to the county for eight months. During the eight months the welfare unite has been in existence, 320 calls have been made by the superintendent. Five children and one adult have been committed to the care of the State Board of Public Welfare. Sixteen children have been made wards of the juvenile court of Fairfax County because of neglect or death of the parents, and are now under the supervision of the welfare worker. Five children have been placed in foster homes, with the possibility of later adoption. Three insane persons have been committed to the State hospital, many investigations have been made by the superintendent of parents' neglect, cruelty to children and neglect of old persons.

The superintendent has received $35 in food orders from overseers of the poor in the county and investigation of three cases has resulted in those cases being taken off the county poor fund, which caused a saving of $420 a year to the county.

The office of the welfare worker has been called to aid in making investigations for the States of Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware, New York, Indiana and the District of Columbia. The report states that this work has prevented Fairfax County from becoming a dumping ground for numerous undesirables.

Various religious and other organizations of the county have assisted in the welfare work both financially and with their moral support. The report especially thanked Mrs. Amos H. Chilcott, chairman of the welfare board's clothing committee, for her support and cooperation in getting a storehouse for clothing in the basement of the courthouse from which calls of needy persons are answered.

Beginning July 1 of this year, Mrs. Manghum will receive $1,500 a year as salary for her work in the county.

Members of the Volunteer Fire Department at Herndon will hold a special celebration this morning, when Mrs. Mary M. North, of Herndon and Washington, will present the company a flag to be flown over the new engine house.

The program will open at 9 o'clock at the engine house with musical selections by the Herndon Music Study Club. The invocation will be given by the Rev. J. C. Dugger, pastor of the Herndon Methodist Church. The flag will be presented by Mrs. North and will be accepted by President T. Edgar Reid, of the fire department. The Declaration of Independence will be read by Howard Armfield. Singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" will close the exercises.

The old-fashioned carnival of the Vienna Volunteer Fire Department will open today in Vienna and be continued through tomorrow.

The Elks Club Boys Band of 50 pieces from Washington will give a concert this afternoon from 1 until 7 o'clock. There will be two baseball games between the Colvin Run Team and the Vienna Fire Department Team, the first game to be played at 10 o'clock in the morning and the other at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. A baby show will also be held and will be composed of four classes of babies up to 3 years old, with prizes for each class. Dancing will be a feature of both evenings. Many other amusements will be offered to the patrons.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Fire Department will serve an old-fashioned chicken dinner today and a roast beef dinner tomorrow. A new car will be given away at the close of the carnival tomorrow night to the holder of the winning ticket.

EXPERTS TO STUDY FARMING MARKETS

Four of Seven New Projects Deal With Selling of Rural Products.

FIELD TESTS PLANNED

Blacksburg, Va., July 3 (A.P.).—The importance of marketing as a farm problem is emphasized by the nature of new projects to be undertaken during the coming year by the Virginia Experiment Station. Of the seven new projects announced today by Dr. A. W. Drinkard, jr., director, four deal with marketing.

C. C. Taylor, agricultural economist of the experiment station, and Dr. J. E. Lodewick, professor of wood technology, will study markets, marketing costs and methods of marketing Virginia farm woodland products. Dr. Lodewick last year completed a survey of wood-using industries in Virginia. In the new project, in which the experiment station and the college will cooperate, a study will be made to trace timber grown on the farm to the consumer.

Because typical forest and market conditions are to be found in Wise, Charlotte, Nansemond, Madison, Loudoun and Essex counties, field studies will be made there. Information to be obtained will list wood products made, cost of getting out the wood, various commissions, freight rates and specifications under which the timber is bought and sold.

List to Be Sought.

An attempt will be made to obtain a list of farmers, sawmill operators, brokers, wholesalers and users in these counties. Results of the study will be published as an experiment station bulletin.

R. A. Baillinger and J. J. Vernon, agricultural economists, will study Virginia tobacco marketing in regard to methods, costs and prices. Some of the objects of the study are to determine proper methods for curing tobacco, the value to farmers of Federal-State grading and inspection work, the extent to which leaf tobacco can be profitably sorted into grades before offering it for sale, factors necessary for reducing costs and increasing the efficiency of tobacco rehouse operation, costs of storing and transporting tobacco and methods and costs involved in its market distribution.

J. L. Maxton, agricultural economist, will study market distribution of Virginia dairy products. Some of the objects of his study will be to trace the cost of handling butter and cheese from producer to wholesaler, to determine the grade of butter and other dairy products in various localities and to ascertain the causes for consumer preference, if any, for butter and other dairy products shipped into Virginia.

Butter Substitute Use.

Other objects are to determine the regional, seasonal, occupational and other influences affecting the use of butter substitutes, with particular attention to the use of such substitutes by farmers, to measure the interrelationship of price and production with reference to each of the important dairy products.

C. C. Taylor and Paul L. Fletcher, agricultural economists, will make a study of wool marketing. Objects will be to
